SUITS LIKE THESE FOR LAD AND LASS
MAKE THEM EAGER TO GO TO CLASS

NEW TOGS FOR SCHOOL ARE SMARTLY MADE—
(PUPILS IN LINEN WILL MAKE THE GRADE)

A little boy should start to school
So simply dressed that he Won't lose a button, tear a seam
'Til after half-past three.
And if he has short linen pants
That fasten to a shirt
Of cotton stuff that's loose and white,
And doesn't pick up dirt,
He'll learn to read and write and spell,
Or take it on the nose
(When he gets in an alley fight, Unhindered by his clothes!)

Little girls should wear wide skirts
With plants sewn half-way down.
(They fasten like the grown-up skirts
You see around the town.)
The cotton-shirt is white and it
Has buttons in a row;
The neck's a Peter Pan affair,
The collar, as you know,
Is fashioned for a small boy's shirt—
No girl will want to miss
A single day of school, you'll find,
If she is dressed like this!

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

Picking Lipstick

By Alicia Hart

Two things are all important when it comes to choosing a new lipstick. First, the colour should be just right. Second, it should be a brand which will stay on your lips.

There is no use using a lipstick that will rub off on your handkerchiefs or your hostess' best linen napkins. Now-a-days you can get lipsticks which are not greasy, mossy things that "cake" or rub off on everything.

They are more like a dye than a grease paint.

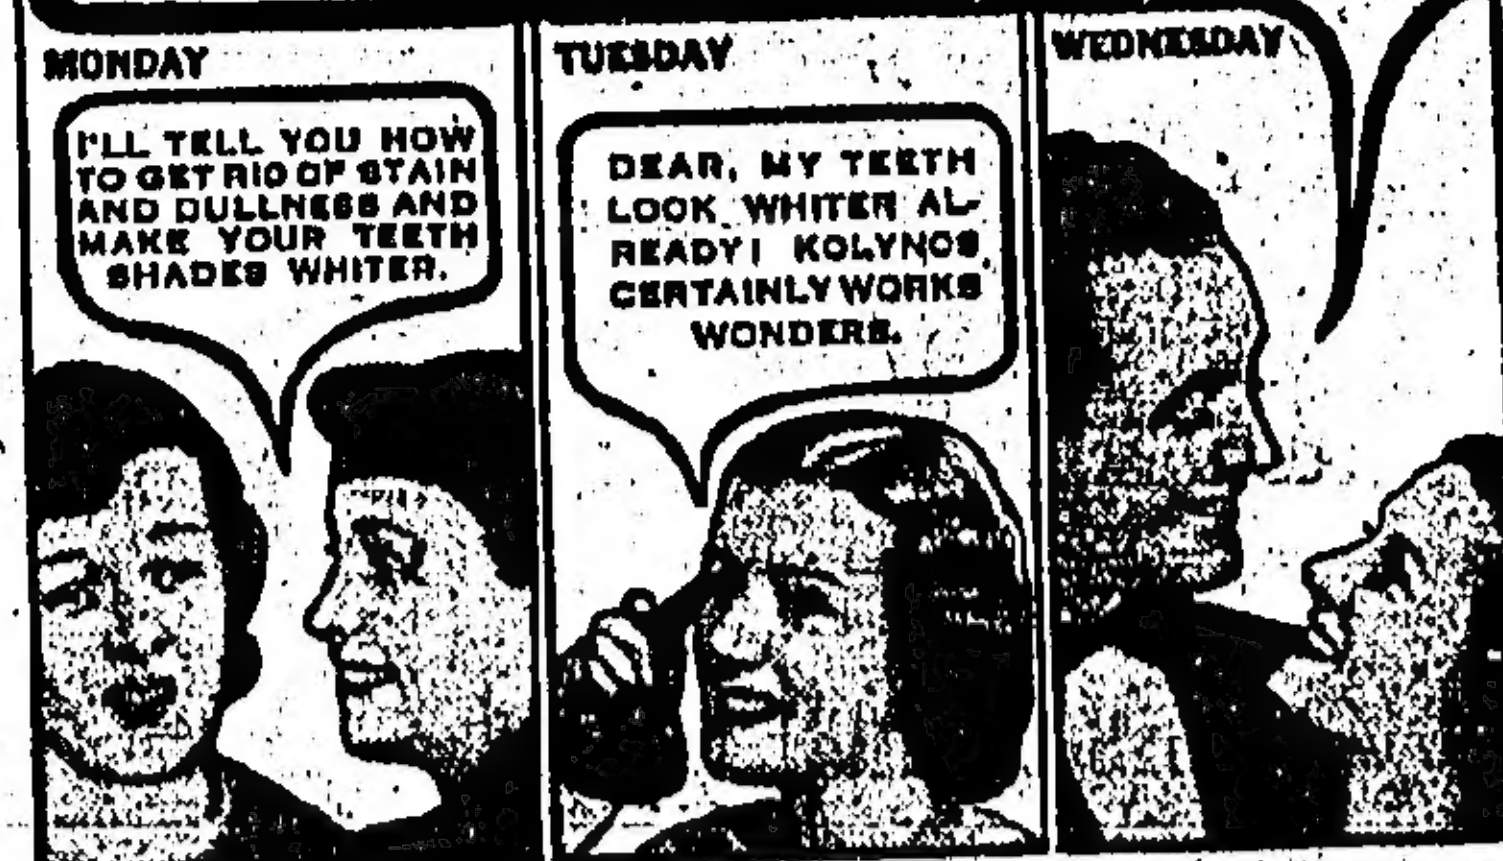

Choose a colour the same shade your lips would be if they had a natural high colour. When you go to buy a lipstick, ask the shop assistant to give you a hand mirror. Rub your lips vigorously with the back of your hand and then look in the mirror to scrutinize the colour which the rubbing has brought into them. The lipstick you then buy should be exactly the colour of your lips.

Always dry your lips with a piece of cleansing tissue before you start to apply makeup. Never put on lipstick when they are wet, or even slightly moist. You won't get an even, smooth effect if you do.

Follow the natural contour with the lipstick. Rough edges can be smoothed away with your forefinger covered with cleansing tissue.

Allow at least ten minutes for the lipstick to dry before you moisten your lips. You'll be surprised how much longer it stays on if you work along these lines.

"SHADOWS BY THE SEA"

A Summer Mystery BY J. JEFFERSON FARJEON

SYNOPSIS

Leonard Sefton, waiting Craverley, discovers the little seaside town, and the disappearance of the proprietor of the "Seaside" hotel, which is the main mystery of the story. A mysterious stranger, known to the proprietor, is the key to the mystery. The story is a summer mystery, and the disappearance of the proprietor is the main mystery. The story is a summer mystery, and the disappearance of the proprietor is the main mystery.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER VIII

"The Peculiar Behaviour of Luigi!" Leonard Sefton and Beryl Haines formed a new avocation for the summer. The exuberance of swimming that evening over dinner, for although among diners these two possessed the grimmest secret knowledge, they provided the gayest tone. Old Mr. Griddle, sitting at his favourite corner table, remarked to Luigi that, if only he were a little younger, he would be tempted to try the effect of before-dinner bathing himself.

"We've not been so lively for a week," he observed. "This new arrival is certainly cheering us all up a bit."

"Is he ver'—how you say?—live 'earted, yes," agreed Luigi, rather absently.

"Well, don't you think it a good thing?" asked Mr. Griddle, rather sharply. Luigi's tone had not been particularly enthusiastic.

"Si, sir," repeated the waiter, grinning galvanically. "E laugh a lot—"

"And laughter's what we want," interposed Mr. Griddle. "It seems to me you could do with a little more, Luigi! Now, now—you'll have my glass over with your elbow in a minute!"

"Pardon!" muttered Luigi. "All this—it upset me. In Italy, I laugh. All the time, yes! But, here—?" He shook his head, possibly in sympathy with the hand that was pouring out Mr. Griddle's burgundy, for that shook, too.

"It's time you stopped feeling upset, then," remarked the old man, dryly. "Unless anything fresh has happened to-day? Eh? Has it?"

Luigi did not reply at once. He appeared to be very intent upon the business of wine-pouring. Then, as he saw Mr. Griddle's eyes upon him, he suddenly answered:

"To-day? Oh, no! Nothing 'appen now. All over."

As he hurried away to attend to the table where the Haineses were sitting, a burst of laughter arose.

"Jolly good, jolly good!" cried the voices of Napoleon Truelove.

"But I've just thought of a riddle better than that—"

"It's got to be original," exclaimed Beryl Haines. "Mine was."

"Oh, it's quite original—I've only just made it up," Napoleon assured her. "At least, I got the idea when I came across a broken bicycle in the old shed here. Silly as I am—now I'm giving it away, before I begin—"

"Well, for heaven's sake, old chap,

do begin," pleaded Guy.

"Right—here goes," said Napoleon, clearing his voice. "The question's a bit long, but the answer's worth it. A fellow went out on a bicycle, and there was an accident. Got that?"

"Yes."

"All right. Now, the accident was all because the man and his bicycle disagreed. They disagreed about how they should travel."

"Got that?"

"No."

"Well, never mind. The question is—how did they disagree? How did each of them want to travel?"

"I say, Nappy, how many riddle is this?" enquired Beryl, politely. "It seems like a dozen."

"Well, the answer's good, anyway," retorted Napoleon. "Listen. How did they travel? Now, then, the man bicycled, and the bicycle bust. B-u-s-t—B-u-s-t—"

"And now there's another accident!" exclaimed Guy, amid loud groans of disapproval. "I don't wonder you knocked that roll over, Luigi, after hearing such a vile riddle as that!"

Luigi picked up the roll, apologising, and replaced it by another. He was certainly behaving very clumsily this evening. When the meal was over, Leonard sought Miss Fyne in her office, and remained upon it.

"Your Italian waiter's full of nerves to-night," he said. "Is he always like this?"

"He's no—or exactly pacific," replied Jessica Fyne, smiling slightly, "but then I've only had him a few days; so I don't know his ordinary habits. Why, what has he been doing?"

"All the things that a proper, well-regulated waiter should not do," answered Leonard. "Upsetting rolls, and bringing the wrong dishes. . . . Where did you pick him up?"

"He applied for the job after my last waiter had his accident."

"Oh, yes—I think you told me. Were his references all right?"

"Yes, they seemed so. But I didn't have time to go into them very seriously—you see, it was just after my father disappeared—and, then, I had to have someone. I was very glad he came."

Leonard nodded. "Yes—he chose an auspicious moment, didn't he? Are you satisfied with him?"

"I think so."

"That means you're not quite. I'm not, Miss Fyne. I'm not satisfied with him at all."

"Why, what do you mean?"

"I'll tell you presently—but, of course, I may be all wrong. First, I'd like to have a word or two with your most youthful retainer, if I may. Will you send for him?"

She stretched—her hand and pressed the bell-push thrice. While they were waiting for Jim to appear she asked, abruptly:

"Did you enjoy your swim, Mr. Sefton?"

"Very much," he answered.

"You reached the wreck?"

"Yes—and was nearly late for dinner, in consequence. I suppose you swim, Miss Fyne?"

"Until a week ago I bathed regularly, before breakfast."

"But now you've no time?"

"Or inclination."

"I see. Yes, I understand. But I think it would be an excellent plan if you resumed the practice to-morrow. You must look after yourself, you know—you must give yourself a chance to keep your spirit."

"Ah, here comes Jim. How he must hate carpets!"

"Why?" she enquired.

"They don't show foot-prints," he replied.

Jim stood before them solemnly and expectantly. Mr. Sefton had described him as the Record Department, and he wondered whether the contents of his precious book were about to be further consulted. But Leonard's first question was not concerning the book.

"Have you told anybody about our disappearing corpse, Jim?" he asked.

"No, Sir," answered the boy.

"Not a soul?"

"Not nobody, sir. You told me not to, I ain't even told Looby."

"Luigi!" exclaimed Leonard, sharply. "Why do you mention him?"

"Well, sir, 'cos 'e asks me wot 'appened, but I didn't tell 'im nothin'."

"No, I still haven't got this straight," said Leonard. "Why should Luigi ask you? Does he know anything about it?"

"Yessir. When I just comes up arter seel'—arter seel' 'im, yer know—I meets Looby in the road."

"You didn't tell me that. Then Luigi knows what you found at the foot of the gop?"

"Yessir. I told 'im."

"He was on the lawn when Jim spoke to me," interposed Jessica.

"Yes, I remember. I saw him."

But I didn't realise that Jim has spoken to him, and Jim didn't mention it."

"Ought I to 'ave, sir?" murmured Jim, depressed.

"No reason at all why you should have," answered Leonard, smiling suddenly, "and I'm not saying it's of any importance." He considered for a moment. "Then Luigi's the only member of the staff who knows, besides you, eh?"

"Yessir."

"I suppose you're quite sure of that, Jim? Quite, quite sure?"

"Yessir."

"None of the maids, or the cook—"

"None of 'em, sir, 'cos if they knowed they'd be torkin' about it or the t'm, don't I know 'em!"

"Good enough," replied Leonard, while Jessica watched him and wondered exactly what was at the back of his mind. "Now, just one more question, young man, and then you can go. Is your note-book absolutely private, or would you mind letting me have a glance at it? I've a notion it might be quite helpful—you're really quite a smart little chap at making notes."

Jim swelled with pride, and put his hand into his pocket. But the pride left his face the next moment. "Golly!" he exclaimed, in elegant under emotion. "It's gone!"

Leonard frowned, and he glanced at Jessica.

"That's a nuisance," he remarked. "But perhaps you've just laid it down somewhere, and forgotten."

"No, sir—it was in my pocket!" exclaimed the boy, excitedly. "Somebody took it!"

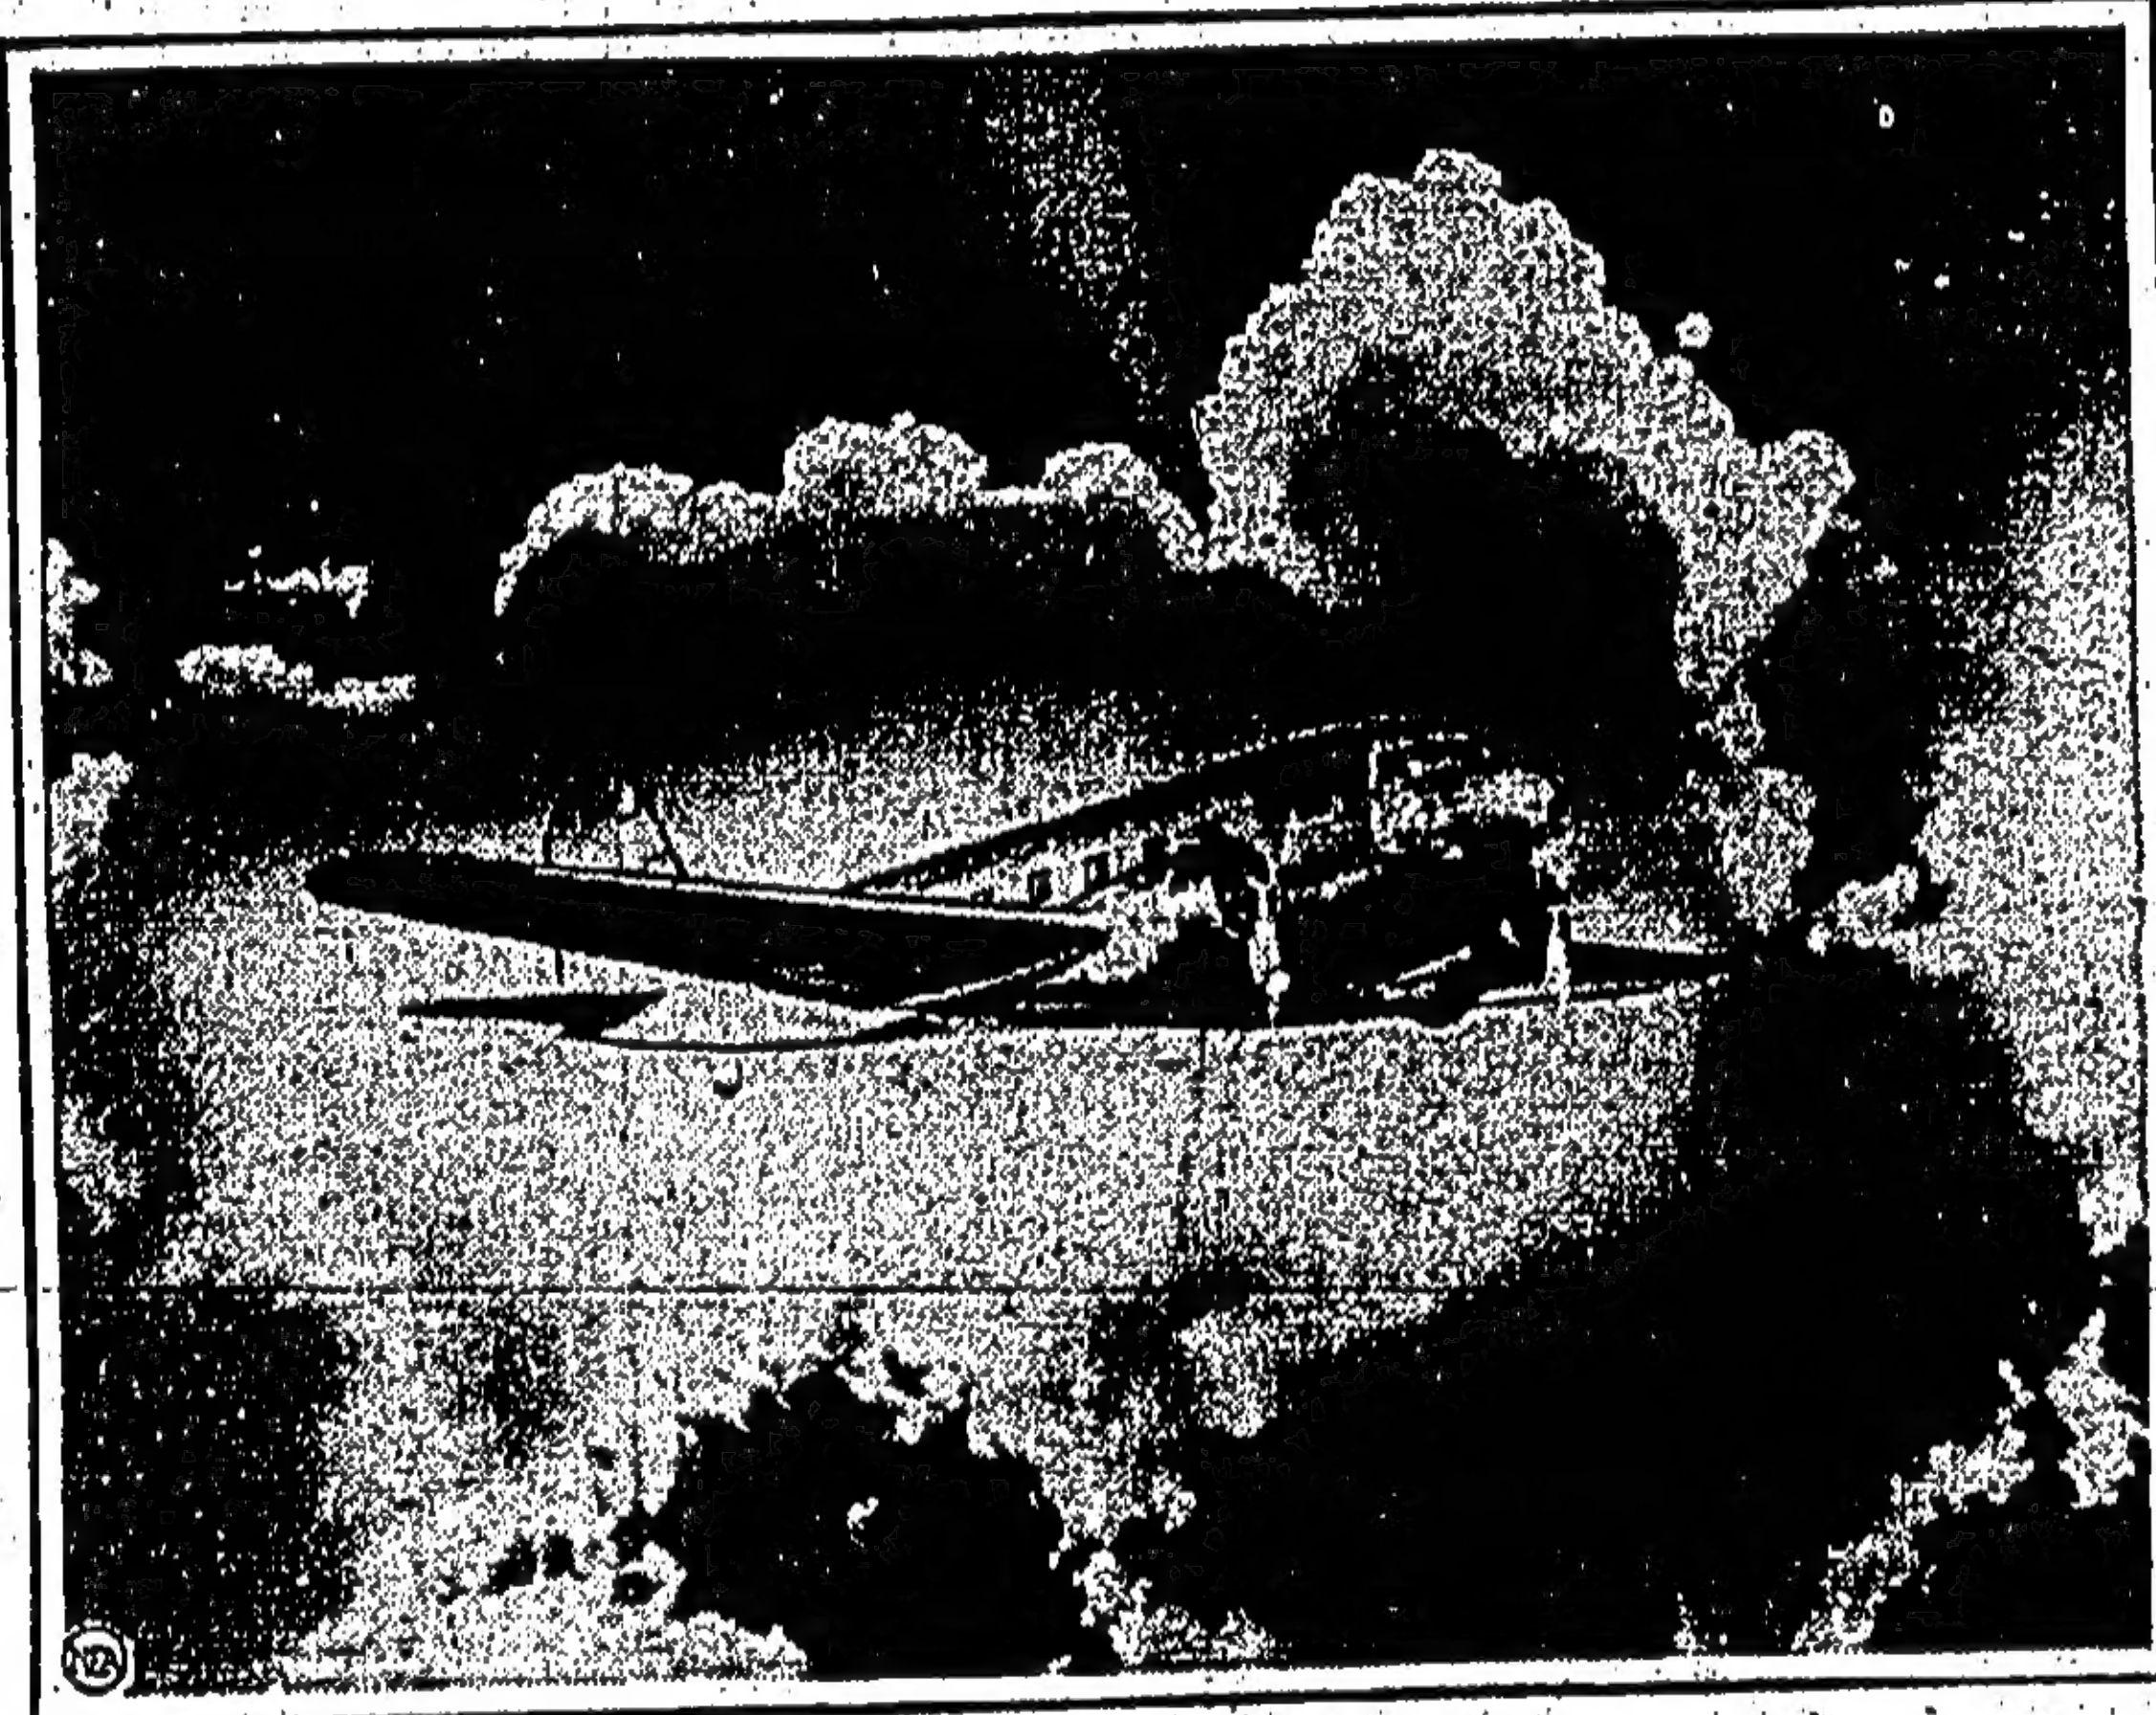

His voice quivered with indignation; yet there was something rather pleasant in the situation, to counteract his grief. For who would trouble to steal a note-book unless the note-book were valuable. And who but Jim had increased the value of the note-book beyond the humble penny he had paid for it?

"Well, see if you can find it, Jim," said Leonard. "Now you've got a definite job. I want you to bring me your book, and the name of

OOL LEONG TEIK writes:—

"It is with the greatest pleasure that I write to testify to the benefits I have received by taking Phosferine during my training for the 1931 Malayan Weight-Lifting Championships.

As I had to reduce some seven or eight pounds off my normal bodyweight in order to enable me to compete in the 9-stone class, I had to go into very strenuous training, and with the help of Phosferine, I not only won the championship of that class, but also the individual Championship, and, in addition I broke a British Record.

I therefore have no hesitation in recommending Phosferine to any physical culturist or athlete, whether he be in ordinary training or preparing for a competition, as it

REVOLT IN SIAM

CONFLICTING REPORTS OF BATTLE TIDE

Singapore, Oct. 24.
News from Siam regarding the progress of the revolution is most conflicting. There are many reports now that the rebels are gaining ground.

The latest message which has crossed the strict censorship in that the King and Queen have hastily left their country seat at Hua Hin for Singora in South
Siam. They were afraid, it appears, that the rebels would capture them.

The entire country in the north is strongly sympathetic to Prince Boravaradej, the leader of the revolt, himself a member of the reigning family. Him the rebels aim to place on the throne,
alleging:

"Our King is quite incapable of administering the state. He is not master of his own feelings.
He allows commoners to despise members of the Royal Family."

Recent reports said that Prince Boravaradej had fled from the scene of action following the defeat of his forces.—Reuters.

FIERCE FIGHTING

POLICE ENCOUNTER WITH BANDITS

Peking, Oct. 24.
Fierce fighting is in progress between the special police and the bandits in the Luantung area two miles north of Funing, following a general attack by the Government troops yesterday evening. A detachment is still engaged with the bandits holding the summit of the mountain overlooking Funing, where the outlaws have dug three trenches.

The bandits on the summit are reported to be keeping captive twenty young men whom they kidnapped during their marauding exploits. The bandit forces in Funing itself are estimated at a thousand.

Supplies of food and fuel in the town are running short and its fall is expected at any moment.

THE FRENCH CRISIS

The fall of the Daladier Government is not surprising. The storm has long been brewing owing to fundamental antagonism between the Socialist and the Radical conceptions of Budget-balancing proposals. It was delayed by the process of postponing controversy and allowing the 1933 deficit to mount up, no effort being made to check it. France therefore finds herself in a relatively more serious plight than nine months ago, with her Government credit weakened and the stability of the franc threatened, a dangerous situation which is the direct outcome of long and continued failure to face the financial situation squarely and impose the necessary economies in expenditure. Any successor to M. Daladier will be confronted by the same difficulties. He cannot succeed in averting the serious position unless he introduces an unpopular measure. It needs a change of outlook, of which there is as yet no sign. Something of the French wartime spirit of sacrifice is required to avoid financial disaster. The appearances point to a combination of the Radicals with the Right, with the possibility of a series of short-lived Ministers. It can only be hoped that there will not be a break in foreign policy, although even that is not assured. The best prospects for a settlement in Europe rested with a continuance of the Daladier Ministry. In the meantime, however, domestic issues will dominate the French political field and France must continue in a state of high fever financially until her leaders agree upon a remedy. The time for palliatives has passed long since. Everyone who has been acquainted with the facts had long foreseen that any government which failed to tackle the problem would fail. Party quarrels and the resultant undermining of confidence has worsened the situation. What France needs is not political finance but financial policy. It is not the political doctrines of the Left or the political doctrines of the Right which will bring about a better condition of affairs. It is necessary that all Frenchmen should forget their differences, should realise that if the country is to be saved from disaster, they must seek, in no partisan spirit, but with a single eye to national interests, the solution of the exceedingly grave problems that have been neglected for so long.

NOTES OF THE DAY

U.S. MONETARY POLICY

President Roosevelt's monetary policy has shocked orthodox finance, as was only to be expected. The alarm arises from the fact that in the new experiment to be tried, money is to be treated in a manner never before attempted, and although it is admitted that the essence of President Roosevelt's plans is to make money the servant instead of the master, the proposals as Utopian, it is impossible to even hazard a guess as to whether the experiment will succeed. The United States is striking out in a completely unknown country against a foe of uncalculated strength. The effort is being made largely because pressure from the rear is too great to be resisted any longer.

SENSIBLE ENOUGH

The avowed objective is plain and sensible enough. The President aims to bring an end to wild price fluctuations, to produce a dollar that will be worth when paid back exactly what it was worth when borrowed; he seeks the creation of a monetary system under which trade and industry can operate with some degree of regularity. It is obvious that a peril has to be faced. The attempt may work and on the other hand, it may not; but behind there stands the plain fact that the system the world has been using has not worked. America may be jumping into the fire, but at least she is jumping out of an unendurable hot frying pan. Most of British criticism rests less upon the merits of the experiment than upon the fact that it leaves out of all consideration any linking of the dollar with other foreign currencies.

ECONOMIC ISOLATION

No-one can doubt that further economic isolation, which would naturally follow for some considerable time upon the success of the new dollar experiment, would be bad for the world as a whole, setting up further barriers to free international trade intercourse. But President Roosevelt is merely standing by the principle laid down at the World Economic Conference, that his own house must be put in order before he can contribute towards general measures of revival. Selfish in conception, it may be, but this attitude was the one which most big countries accepted at the Conference, and whether it was dictated by President Roosevelt or not makes very little difference. The policy outlined by President Roosevelt is not one of his own devising. It is substantially a programme recommended by advanced economic thinkers for some time past, although they have been regarded as voices crying in the wilderness. The United States is determined to attempt to put the theory into practice. And it is still a matter of opinion as to whether President Roosevelt is moving too fast or others are moving too slowly.

AMERICA AND LEAGUE

In the present period of international tension the relationships of the United States with the League of Nations seem to require redefinition. The present contacts of Washington with Geneva abound in anomalies and inconsistencies. The United States is not a member of the League. Yet so many Americans have been spokesmen in Geneva that it is sometimes difficult for the League to know where to turn for an authoritative expression of American opinion or policy. In spite of numerous channels of communication, the representatives of the United States are not permitted to raise their voices where they are most needed or desired. It is necessary to resort to subterfuge or to take refuge in technicalities in order that normal relations between the United States and League organs may be established.

COUNCIL COMEDY

It has now been decided that the American Minister to Switzerland, Mr. Hugh Wilson, whose post is at Berne, but who is obliged to spend about half his time in Geneva, will sit on the League Council to choose an American member of the Permanent Central Opium Board. But it is explained that he will not be really sitting on the Council, for the Council on this occasion will not call itself the Council, but a special committee sitting for a specific purpose. The last time an American sat at the Council table, it was not the American Minister to Switzerland who occupied the extra chair. It was the American consul at Geneva, Mr. Prentiss Gilbert, who has been equipped with a special staff of qualified assistants in order to keep in intimate touch with activities. League officials and delegates from other countries find some amusement in speculating who the next American spokesman will be.

FINANCE OF INDIAN FEDERATION

Cost of White Paper Utopia

By DOUGLAS DEWAR

SIR Malcolm Hailey recently drew up a memorandum entitled "The Financial Implications of (1) Provincial Autonomy and (2) Federation."

The memorandum, although limited in scope, contains sufficient information to demonstrate that, for many days to come, India will not be wealthy enough to receive and maintain the white elephant bred by the late Socialist Government, and nursed by their successors.

SIR Malcolm estimates that the Provinces, if they are to run as self-supporting units, will require between them an additional sum of from Rs. 6 to 8 crores (£4,500,000 to £6,000,000) a year, but "it must be realised, even with this provision, some of the Provinces will start off on a bare subsistence level." As the provincial sources of taxation are yielding already their maximum return, the Local Governments will not be able to raise this sum, or any part thereof; the whole will have to be found by the Central Government. The extra expenditure at the Centre is estimated by SIR Malcolm to be from Rs. 2½ to 3½ crores (£1,875,000 to £2,625,000) a year.

This is not the whole story. SIR Malcolm does not deal with the effect of the White Paper proposals on the Indian revenues, except to mention that they will entail a loss of Rs. 1 crore per annum in currency receipts; and he is silent as to the effect of the change in administration on India's credit. The handing over of control to the Indians must for obvious reasons result in a fall in the Government revenues. Doubtless many British officials who dislike the White Paper proposals will retire on proportionate pensions. One hundred and ninety of them did so during the first year of the Montagu-Chelmsford reforms, when, unlike those now proposed, affected only a portion of the Indian officials.

Such retirements will not only increase the expenditure on pensions, but will diminish the efficiency of the administration, as many posts will be filled by inexperienced men. Dishonest subordinates will take advantage of this, and there will be many financial irregularities, leading to loss of revenue. Such irregularities occur in almost every office in which supervision is lax, as the reports on the working of the Local Boards under Indian control show. The fact that over two million people are caught every year travelling without tickets on the main Indian railways shows that many of the inhabitants of that country are ready to feather their nest at the expense of others.

The handing over of the Police to Indian control will afford a grand opportunity for crime of all sorts; dacoities, burglaries, and riots are not conducive to good trade, and are likely to affect the revenue adversely. Clearly, then, if the proposed "reforms" be effected, the Indian Governments will have to face both increase of expenditure and fall in revenue.

"It is clear," says SIR Malcolm Hailey, "that some considerable betterment of Central Finances, and on an assured basis, must take place before the Centre can make the surrenders necessary to establish the Provinces as independent financial units on such terms as will allow them to rest securely on their own resources." The Secretary of State for India, when trying to make the best of a bad business, said to the Joint Committee on July 6: "After all, my Lord Chairman, we are balancing our Budget."

Let us see how this has been done. The revised estimates for 1932-33 show a surplus of Rs. 2.17 crores (over £1,600,000). A 10 per cent. cut in the pay of all Indian officials resulted in a saving of Rs. 2.50 crores. The expenditure on Military services last year was Rs. 48.74 crores as opposed to Rs. 68.91 crores in 1922-23. When the military expenditure was cut down from the latter figure to Rs. 55 crores in 1928-29, the Commander-in-Chief said this involved "a certain degree of risk," but he felt this was justified in view of the financial plight of India. In 1928 the Government of India said that Rs. 55 crores a year was the lowest possible expenditure if "India is to make reasonable provision for her defence in modern conditions." Nevertheless, last year Rs. 8½ crores less than this minimum was spent. One crore of this is attributable to fall in prices, the remainder means "depletion of stocks of supplies and the postponement of building and other programmes."

On the revenue side the figures of last year's Budget are swollen by Rs. 1.50 crores for receipts on salt, which, but for the extinction of the credit system, would not have been paid until this year; and Rs. 18 crores are "attributable to the recent 'emergency' surcharges on Customs, Taxes on Income and salt." Owing to the unsatisfactory condition of Central finance in 1931, these surcharges were imposed whereby the Salt Tax was increased by 40 per cent., Income Tax by 25 per cent., and Import Duties by 50 per cent., and the pay of all officials reduced by 10 per cent. These surcharges were to be limited to two years, but they still exist, though in the current year the provision in pay has been halved. Thus, there must be an enormous betterment of India's finances before the White Paper white elephant can be entertained.

Meanwhile, there are other financial obstacles to be overcome. The currency problem is to be solved by a Reserve Bank, to which the Central Government has to subscribe Rs. 40 crores (over £30,000,000). The Central Government owes something like 90 crores of rupees, which are payable on demand; i.e., the amount of the Post Office Savings Bank deposits and cash certificates outstanding. When the War broke out in 1914 there were no cash certificates, but the withdrawals of Post Office Savings Bank deposits were heavy. During August, September, and

The Very Idea!

CAUGHT OUT.

By Eddie Kelly, M.C.C.

INTERPORT cricket trial, we read in the Telegraph, was a failure, because the unlucky batsmen weren't sent in first.

We don't know what it all means, but we feel peeved about the matter.

Cricket should be taken more seriously than this. Look how seriously the Australians take it. You don't see our friends in the Antipathies having interport failures.

Hongkong cricketers "pay too much attention to the batting and bowling. Cricket should be lived up a bit.

For instance, animal cricketers sing by rubbing their hind legs together. Let's introduce a little variety into the local game by having our players do the same thing.

Probably half our cricketers don't know the meaning of the word "cricket." What we know about cricket may't fill the "Very Idea" column, but there's no harm in trying. Besides, we feel like imparting some knowledge this afternoon.

BAT.—Old-fashioned instrument used to protect the legs. Also useful for braining wicket-keeper, or bashing bowler as you pass him.

BODY-LINE.—Imaginary line separating stomach from lower limbs. A hit above the body-line counts one extra. BODY-LINE is also called (concocted) and (wiped out) and (unprintable word) in Australia, but these expressions are not recommended for Hongkong.

BOWLER.—Old-fashioned hat. M.C.C.—Latin for 1200. This is the year Yorkshire defeated Lancashire.

PLAYER.—Favourite brand of cigarettes. Hence "GASPER" is a wined player. See also Captain, or Captain.

GENTLEMEN.—Meaning obscure. Men have not been gentle at cricket since BODY-LINE (q.v.) was introduced.

CREASE.—Neat fold in trousers. STUMP.—Amputated leg of one-legged cricketer. The player is said to be "stumped" in a match if he had a leg before.

CHANGE OF BOWLERS.—Hats that have become mixed. Generally played in the Hongkong Club.

INNINGS.—The time it takes to get a side out. Generally half an hour after the bar closes.

EXTRAS.—Payment for early morning tea, cigarettes, liquors etc. Also includes Cumschaw.

LONG STOP.—Takes place at conclusion of match.

MAIDEN.—Girl cricketers. LEG-GLANCE.—Glance in the direction of a girl cricketer when she is fielding somewhere to leg.

POINT.—Business end of the stump.

SILLY POINT.—Calling an end of a stump the business end is silly.

NO BALL.—No ball available. The game must thereupon be abandoned.

WICKET.—Term applied to any cricketer who does naughty things. LEG BEFORE WICKET.—A girl in a bathing costume standing in front of Eddie Kelly.

STUMPED.—Well, even if we are, we managed to fill out three-quarters of a column.

ENGLAND EXPECTS

We were walking down Connaught Road with Robert MacWhirter on Saturday, when one of those pretty skirts in sailor's rigouts pulled us up.

"Buy a flag!" she appealed to Mac.

"No speeka da Engleeseh!" he replied.

A SLUG IN THE EYE.

The other day we had an article about Gardening. A correspondent, who claims he is sixty per cent. of our readers, wrote in asking us if we could give him a good cure for slugs, as they were eating up all the radishes in his kitchen garden.

We advised him to get a few lbs. of salt and sprinkle it between the rows. The following letter arrived to-day:

Dear Kelly.—Your cure for slugs was a wash-out. When I went to look at the garden this morning, the slugs were pulling up the radishes, dipping them in the salt, and eating them!

It seems that no one in England can trace his ancestry back to William the Conqueror.

Out here, of course, it is comparatively easy to trace back to the concubine.

BETWEEN TWO TRAMSAMAZING MOTOR ACCIDENT

SHANGHAI CRASH

Shanghai, Oct. 21.
Caught between two trams outside the Palace Hotel in Nanking Road yesterday, a motor car was crumpled up like a concertina and three foreigners had a narrow escape from death, having to crawl out of the car from the smashed top in one of the most unusual accidents ever recorded in Shanghai. The accident was witnessed by a large number of people frequenting the road at the time.

A Ford Fordor Sedan had crossed Szechuen Road at the intersection with Nanking Road at 1.54 p.m. One minute later, in front of the Palace Hotel Bar, it was a complete wreck, the resounding crash bringing to their windows the tenants in rooms in both the Palace and Cathay Hotels, as well as thousands of office-goers. Half a dozen insurance men were there as well.

Tram Forced from Track
According to the statement of eye-witnesses, the car, driven by Miss A. da Cruz, her brother and sister as passengers and all three sitting in the front seat, attempted to pass on the right hand side, an east-bound tram with trailer. What transpired in the next few seconds, no one is able to tell a coherent tale other than that the west-bound tram sandwiched the motor car between the two. The impact and position of the car was sufficient to throw the east-bound tram clear of the tracks.

With traction of all three vehicles "off," there was a complete stoppage of traffic on Nanking Road, office-goers being held up a far back as Thibet Road. The situation rivals that of several years ago on the Bund near the N.Y.K. Building, when a small car was completely telescoped between two trams. The hood and radiator of the motor car was crushed and stuck between the stationary trams. After the shock the occupants clambered out of the roof, none the worse for the jar.

Miraculous Escape
The first onlooker to the scene, describes the aftermath in the following terms, "I thought that all must have been killed. The motor car had grazed the east-bound tram for a distance of eighteen feet actual measurement in the driver's desperate attempt to avoid the oncoming tram. It is of wreckage stuck to the tram while the gate was smashed. The other tram suffered less. At least five minutes were required to remove the car after the tram had backed off."

BRITON'S WIFE
KIDNAPPED?PROF. O'CONROY ATTACKS JAPAN

London, Oct. 20.
Professor O'Conroy, formerly instructor of English at the Keio University, Tokyo, who last week published an article violently attacking Japanese imperialism, last night intimated to press representatives his fears that his wife may have been kidnapped in Japan.

Professor O'Conroy said he has not heard for a long time from Mrs. O'Conroy, who is of Japanese origin and who returned to Tokyo several months ago to keep her husband posted on developments of the situation in the Far East. He added that this long silence made him fear that she had been kidnapped by the patriotic association called the "Shinseikai," from whom she had already received several threatening letters in connection with Professor O'Conroy's anti-Japanese activities.—Havas.

MR. LANSBURY ON WARPATHVIGOROUS ATTACK ON JAPAN

London, Oct. 20.
A speech was broadcast last night by Mr. George Lansbury, leader of the Labour opposition in the House of Commons, in the course of which he launched an energetic attack against Japan. "Using violence like a real international pirate," Mr. Lansbury said, the Japanese Government has broken all engagements, treating all the pacifist parties signed by Japan like scraps of paper.

CORRESPONDENCE

RECENT ACCIDENT

(To the Editor, Hongkong Telegraph.)

Sir,—With reference to the report which appeared in the Telegraph recently concerning Mr. A. J. P. Heard's accident while driving a Ford V-8 De Luxe Tudor Sedan, may we state that the car was far from being a complete wreck as it was driven under its own power all the way from the Central Police Station, Hongkong, to our headquarters on Nathan Road, Kowloon, and functioned perfectly.

We understand that Mr. Heard is not very seriously injured and his lucky escape can be attributed to only two things: first, the strength of the welded all-steel Ford body which withstood the severe shock of the impact, as no other type of body construction could possibly have done; and second, to the Triplex shatter-proof glass with which all Ford deluxe closed cars are equipped throughout. In this connection we might say that every window in Mr. Heard's car was literally cracked in a thousand places and that not the smallest particle of glass came away. Had the car been equipped with ordinary plate glass, the consequences might have been very serious indeed.

PLANE FACTORY NEAR BERLINEXPERT RECALLED TO TAKE CHARGE

Berlin, Oct. 19.

Carl Buecher, a German naval airman who, for the last ten years, has been head of an aircraft factory in Sweden, has been recalled to Germany to take charge of a new aircraft factory near Berlin for the construction of commercial planes only.

Buecher is described as one of the greatest experts in steel plane construction.—Reuter.

GUN-TEAM TRAGEDY IN JAPAN

Tokyo, Oct. 20.

Tragedy befell a gun-team during battery training near Nagoya this morning, when the wheels of a field-gun skidded and plunged over a bridge. An artilleryman was killed and three companions very critically injured. Two horses were also killed.

DAY BY DAY NEWS IN BRIEF

"SOME WILL RETAIN THE CONVICTION THAT THE ANCIENT BRIDGE BUILT BETWEEN THE TWO TOWNS OF SEX IS THE WORTHIER OF THE GREAT WORKS OF THE EARTH," Gilbert K. Chesterton.

The engagement is announced between Mr. Walter Horst, Indian Service of Engineers, and Margaret Joyce, elder twin daughter of the late Mr. P. H. Holyoak, of Hongkong, and Mrs. Holyoak, Tai Wo, Beach Grove, Amoyham, Bucks.

A revolver was found yesterday by scavenging coolies when removing a rubbish heap in a street at Shamshui, and was handed to the Police, the local Station. It was a .32 calibre weapon, and was in a rusty condition, besides being unworkable.

At the King's Theatre on Friday night the whole of the proceeds of the 9.30 p.m. performance of the Fox Film "Sailor's Luck" will be given to the Cheero Building Fund. His Excellency the Governor and Lady Peel are taking a small party to witness the performance.

The fortnightly meeting of the Sanitary Board was held yesterday afternoon with Mr. T. Megarry, the President, in the chair. Others present were the Hon. Mr. A. G. W. Tickle, Vice-President, Dr. G. W. Pope, M.O.H., Mr. Wong Kwong-tin, Mr. M. K. Lo, Mr. F. C. Hall, Dr. L. Shu-fan, Mr. A. S. Mackenzie, Mr. G. J. Roe, secretary, and Mr. Ng Mul-kai, assistant secretary. The business transacted was purely formal.

and it is something more than a coincidence that most of the players forming that team were Scotsmen. "Some members of the Rangers' side have gained scholastic distinction. Brown, the fair-haired left half, who is 23 years of age, has already obtained his M.A. degree and, after teaching at school, has returned to the University to take an honours course in literature."

"There was a touch of romance, too, in the appearance of Marshall in the match with the Arsenal. He finished his final medical examination on Tuesday afternoon, and travelled to London through the night in order to play. The result of the examination will be known to-day, and I hope Marshall will learn that he is a fully qualified doctor."

PLAYER'S BEST CLUB.

"Mr. William Struth, the Rangers' manager, told me that when Marshall joined the club, at the age of 18—he is now 24—he promised his father that the boy would not only be given every opportunity to pursue his medical studies, but that he would be given every possible assistance. The promise has been splendidly kept."

"Marshall missed one examination through going on tour with the team to Canada, but it was thought at the time that he was almost too young to sit for it."

"There is no better club than the Rangers, from the point of view of the player, and it is probably on this account that they have usually their pick of the young players in Scotland."

"Meet Mr. Struth in his office, and it is easy to imagine that one is being received by one manager of a city company. He was once the trainer to the players, and how close is still his interest in them is shown by the fact that if one should have to have a cartilage removed, he is always present at the operation."

NEGOTIATIONS PLANNED WITH MANCHUKUO

Tokyo, Oct. 24.

It is reported from Harbin that the German Consul there has received instructions from Berlin to negotiate with Manchukuo with a view to bartering German-made machinery for Manchurian soy beans.

According to authoritative sources, it is expected that a satisfactory agreement will be reached.—Reuter.

FINANCE OF INDIAN

October of 1914 Rs.2.8 crores of deposits were withdrawn in the Bombay Presidency alone, where I was Accountant-General. When people found that the Post Office paid at once the panic gradually subsided. Before the proposed Constitution comes into force the bulk of the depositors in the Post Office banks and holders of certificates are likely to call in their money and bury it, on the principle that it is better to forgo a little interest than run the risk of losing the capital should the new Constitution be unworkable.

Another liability of the Government of India is the amount of the various European Family Pension and Provident Funds. These funds, although the property of the subscribers, exist at present only on paper, and are merged in the Central Government balances. The owners will require this money to be placed in the hands of trustees. This will mean the finding of something like £50,000,000. Indian pensioners have the right to commute half the value of their pension for a single cash payment. If the bulk elect to do so, the Indian Government might have to find a further £25,000,000.

Then there are the Government of India sterling loans. Most of these were raised before there was any talk about transferring control of the administration to Indians. Is the nature of the security of the holders of these loans to be changed without the offer of repayment?

the person who has taken it from you."

"I'll do it, sir," replied Jim, hoarsely; and departed.

"Miss Fyne, we seem to be getting somewhere," observed Leonard, when they were alone again. "We're gradually building a pattern, and although I don't know what the final pattern is to be, I'm growing convinced that your new waiter figures pretty prominently in it. And the delicate business is that we mustn't let him know yet of our suspicions."

"But what do you suspect him of, Mr. Sefton?" asked Jessica, anxiously. "You don't mean—you can't mean—?"

"I don't mean anything more than I say. For the moment, I suspect Luigi of nothing definite. But—well, just listen to these points—none of 'em vital by themselves, but are quite interesting when we put them together in a collection. Item, Luigi hears of a most interesting corpse, yet does not say anything about it. Jim, not Luigi, had instructions to remain silent. Item, Luigi was the first person Jim saw after making his discovery. Don't think I'm assuming things from that, but it's just another little point worth remembering. Item, when we question Luigi about an afternoon visitor, he says he has seen none. But when Luigi is recalled, he goes back on himself, and describes a small shabby man when we expected him to describe a large well-dressed one. I don't believe Luigi's small shabby man exists—because, item, it takes Luigi a long while to tell us where the supposed visitor wanted to be directed to."

"Yes, I remember that," nodded Jessica.

"Item," proceeded Leonard, "Luigi is obviously ill at ease over dinner, bumbles his work, and bumbles worst when mention is made of a broken bicycle. Luigi's predecessor is in hospital owing to a bicycle accident. And, item—Jim's note-book has disappeared. Query, did it contain any reference to a broken bicycle? Yes, I shall have to ask Master Jim that."

"The bicycle on which the last waiter had his accident is in the shed outside," exclaimed Jessica suddenly. "Would you like to look at it?"

"I would, very much. How did it get into the shed?"

"After the accident, it was brought back here. The waiter—Anderson's name—doesn't live in the neighbourhood, and there was nowhere else to take it. They didn't want it at the hospital, of course."

"Of course not," nodded Leonard, rising. "What I'm wondering is whether that bicycle might interest them at the police station."

They left the office and crossed to the front-door. As they entered the grounds, laughter came from the tennis lawn, although the light was beginning to fade. Jessica Fyne paused for an instant, and listened.

"That's your doing, Mr. Sefton," she said. "They used to play every-

"It's odd, but it's also useful," replied Leonard. "Business has got to remain as usual as long as we can keep it as usual, until—"

"Until when?" she asked, for he had paused.

"Until that mosaic is completed," he answered, "and we can see our way."

"When will that be?"

"And, after dinner," added Leonard, "the bicycle isn't here. Will you go back to your office, please, and ring twice?"

"You want to speak to Luigi?"

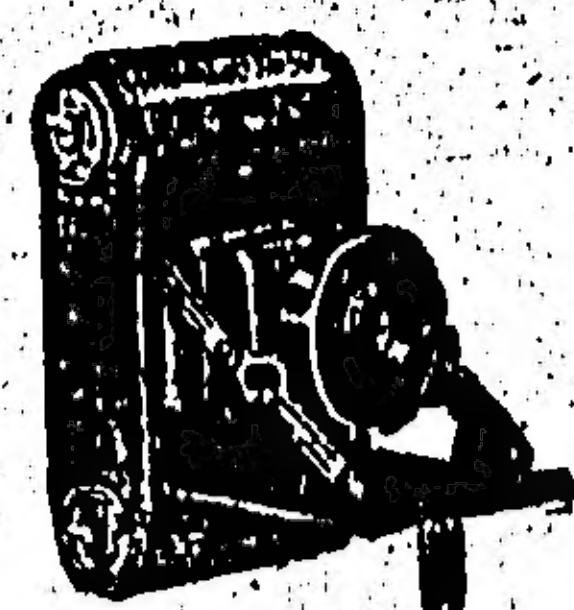

"I think it most important to speak to Luigi."

She closed the shed door, and she returned to the little office. Jessica crossed the hall twice. A minute went by. She rang again.

"Further item," murmured Leonard. "Disappearance of Mr. Luigi."

HOME FOOTBALL: TWO FORECASTS AND TABLES

EXPECTED FROM SATURDAY'S IMPORTANT ENCOUNTERS

ASTON VILLA ENTERTAIN THEIR OLD FOES THE ARSENAL

(By "The Pilgrim")

Some classic struggles for points which are becoming more and more important, are promised in the encounters which will be fought on English and Scottish fields on Saturday.

The clubs are beginning to spread out as the season starts and the well-tried veteran teams get into their stride.

Arsenal will be severely tested at Aston Villa and if they lose it will not be altogether unexpected. If Gallacher is back in the leader's position I fancy Chelsea will show the "Tynesiders" a glimpse of their old—and I am afraid—much tarnished glory.

West Bromwich Albion have a tough opponent to extend them in Huddersfield whom I do not anticipate will drop a point on their own ground. After their flaming victory over Wednesday, the United may be, de-

The Rangers-Kilmarnock fixture will be a test of their strength and if the home side keep their goal clean I shall be surprised.

Celtic have a chance of adding to their still small total and Queen of the South, a much improved eleven, should relieve St. Johnstone of a brace.

The former Cowdenbeath have strong visitors in Ayr and although their two goals against Dundee last week hinted of a revival, I imagine they will not be given much encouragement on Saturday.

The Preston North End fans will await with anxiety the result of their club's meeting with Port Vale. The latter have disposed Bolton and are in overwhelming mood. On the other hand Preston have declined suddenly from their shining victory over Bolton at the beginning of the season.

Bolton should dispose of Fulham fairly comfortably but Bradford will be fully extended by Notts County. Blackpool should profit at Burnley's expense.

In the Northern Section, Chesterfield have an easy task at Salter's Lane whilst their closest challengers, Tranmere have the brilliant but erratic Walsall as opponents.

The Exeter-Norwich match will be worth watching and I wish I could see the Canaries playing their open game against the Southern men. The latter are favoured to win and probably by the same margin (one goal) as last year.

Middlesbro' To See The Sights

ponded upon to lower the City flag whilst Middlesbro' will journey to London in the hopes of seeing the sights than bringing any comfort to their faithful supporters.

The Wolves entertain Wednesday in what will turn out a very even struggle in my opinion.

In Scottish football I have picked Motherwell out as winners of their match with Partick but although their selection is now more a matter of habit than of judgment I do not feel too easy about them. They have fallen off lately and are not a certainty either at home or away.

WHY SCOTTISH SOCCER IS SUPERIOR

DISTINCTIONS ANALYSED BY FRANK CARRUTHERS

That oft debated question—are Scots superior in football science to their English colleagues?—has been given a new interest at home since the Rangers' registered their second defeat of Arsenal as recorded a fortnight or so ago.

One of the most competent judges of the game, Mr. Frank Carruthers, has discussed the point from all angles and his views are here reproduced in full.

He says: "When I was in Glasgow last month it was insisted that Scottish football was a poverty-stricken. Even the Rangers were a poor team, the poorest the club had had for many years."

And the Rangers have twice beaten the Arsenal, the champions of English football.

But if the Scottish champions have created the impression that they are a poor team, I think it is due to the fact that in their own home circle they have so few real contests.

In the Arsenal they had opponents to fight them all the way and pull them out, and under these conditions they revealed themselves as a side worthy to maintain the high traditions of the club.

They were inspired, too, by the crowd, who gave them a magnificent reception. Indeed, in the dressing-room at half-time the talk of the players was mainly of the spectators and of their warm appreciation of good play, no matter who was responsible for it.

These defeats of the Arsenal have raised the old question: What is it that gives Scottish football its superiority?

Not Due To Style And Tactics

definite view. I suggested that the vital difference was in the Scotsman's cleverness to use the ball without stopping it and so gaining the time to make a pass between a man was covered.

"Possibly," replied Marshall in a non-committal way. "But do not give me all the virtues. All the best footballers are not in Scotland."

The one definite opinion Marshall offered was that in modern football a team should be equipped with two big inside forwards to take the ball through. It was men of this type who played in this way who could beat a defence.

"But there is another reason for Scotland's superiority which is not so easy to describe. It may be expressed by 'intelligence' in a broad as well as a football sense. I have played golf with the Rangers, and I have dined with them, and they emphasise to a marked degree the remarkable mental uplift which has taken place among professional footballers during the past 20 years."

"As players the Rangers off the field are different from most men I have met. They are more staid and they suggest that they are older. Some of them have interests bigger and more vital in their view of life than any that may be found within the game, but in every case I imagine that a close study is made of football."

"There is no need for orders to be given from the manager's office as to the tactics which should be employed to win a match. The players are not drilled and disciplined in the methods to be adopted. All these matters are left to their good sense and instinct, and this probably accounts for the fact that they are never stereotyped."

"From this point of view, the Rangers remind me of the Newcastle United team of twenty-five years ago."

"Intelligent" Footballers

I do not believe it to be due to either style or tactics. The commonest held belief is that Scottish teams succeed by means of slow, short passes with the men ambulating about the field in a seemingly lackadaisical manner. The idea is entirely mistaken.

At Highbury the Rangers played the Arsenal football of last season, using the long cross pass to get the defenders on the run, with the men anticipating it and taking up unguarded positions to receive it.

For the moment the Arsenal have lost this style. They are not making use of the field to open up the game, and what is worse, they are keeping the ball as close to them as they can get, the defence out of position.

But the pace of the Arsenal must have met. They are more staid and they suggest that they are older. Some of them have interests bigger and more vital in their view of life than any that may be found within the game, but in every case I imagine that a close study is made of football."

"There is no need for orders to be given from the manager's office as to the tactics which should be employed to win a match. The players are not drilled and disciplined in the methods to be adopted. CLUBHOUSE CHATTER BY THE "PILGRIM"

40 Years In Soccer; New Signatures; Dean's Injury

ONE of the pioneers of Soccer in Yorkshire, Mr. John Brunt, has retired after 40 years' association with the game. He was a founder member of Bradford City—in fact, he specialised in laying foundations.

He was one of the first members of the North-Eastern League, and also of the Northern Counties championship and the Yorkshire Combination.

The first referees' society in England was inaugurated by him, and he may be said to have laid the foundations of the game well and truly in the West Riding.

JOHN Brunt will be remembered as one of the master builders of defence. All who know him will wish him every happiness in his retirement.

WALTER Bussey, the former Stoke inside right is the fourth player signed within five weeks by the new Blackpool board.

BRISTOL City have signed on Kenneth Scattergood, the goalkeeper from Sheffield Wednesday, who terminated a month's trial at Bristol recently.

ALDERSHOT, the least-defeated side in the south, are steadily strengthening their team. They have signed W. Bann, a full-back who has had service with Tottenham Hotspur, Brentford, and Bristol Rovers.

A fortnight ago—the Arsenal have lost their swing and ability to make ground quickly. They are playing too much down the middle and in this cramped style they do not draw the defenders out of position.

THE Arsenal are beginning a new phase now I think, judging by their recent performances.

MINUTES OF FOOTBALL.

THE NEED FOR MORE COACHING

THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN AMATEUR AND PROFESSIONAL FOOTBALLERS

(By "Saracen")

The coaching scheme which the Corinthians have inaugurated is one of the most important moves which has taken place in amateur football and I hope it will be extended over a wide field. I wish in fact that all the leading clubs had a coach of their own. What a difference it would make to their football.

From the point of view of coaching, football on the Continent is far better controlled and encouraged than in England, and to this may be traced the remarkable development which has taken place during the past ten years or so. Players are not only taught to kick, all about the balance of the body which means so much in shooting and in placing the ball accurately but they are also drilled at which ideas are closely studied.

In England the player who is not self-taught is the exception and his knowledge of the game is general and to a large extent haphazard. What he knows about team work is mainly elementary and out on the field he does his best according to his own ideas.

METHODICAL & HAPHAZARD.

But there is a great deal more in the game than this, as every youth entering a professional club quickly discovers. Indeed, if he is frank he will admit at the end of his first week that he knew little or nothing about it. There is one great difference between professional and amateur football. One is methodical and the other is haphazard.

Each member of a team is a cog of the machine and if it is to run smoothly he must play the part set him, fitting in with the other players, and leaving no flaws except those which are unavoidably created through the human error. If one could imagine two teams who were perfect the result would be a stalemate. An effective reply would be made to every move the other attempted.

This perfection cannot, of course, ever be attained but it is the thing to aim for and it can only be done through collective endeavour. So it comes to this that combined efforts counts for more for match-winning purposes than individual feats and if professional football has advanced at all during recent years it has been in this direction. Certainly a greater value is put on team work than ever before. Possibly it has meant the sacrifice of a good deal of individualism which always excites interest, but there is no doubt that it has made for better combination.

JOCKEY CLUB'S MODIFICATIONS

FEATURE PROVES POPULAR

The Stewards of the Hongkong Jockey Club have decided, now that the "Daily Double" has proved to be a popular feature of local racing, to introduce, at the 12th Extra Race Meeting on Saturday, November 4, a few modifications in the system of betting to simplify matters for the backers and to expedite the calculation and payment of dividends.

Tickets will be on sale at the commencement of the Pari-Mutuel Betting on the first of the selected races as before, but when the starters are exhibited on the second of the selected races, instead of the successful backer writing his selection on both halves of the ticket and posting one half in the daily double box, he must exchange the winning ticket for a ticket on the second of the selected race to complete the Double.

The cumbersome method of writing on tickets and posting in a box will be done away with, and the box will no longer be used.

Shroffs will be available to exchange winning tickets on the first of the selected races for a ticket on any pony in the second of the selected races at the Daily Double Counters. The betting will close on the ringing of the bell closing the ordinary Pari-Mutuel betting.

An exchanged ticket on any pony in the second of the selected races will be proof that the holder has backed the winning pony on the first of the selected races.

PONIES CLASSIFIED.

Cossack's Beauty Promoted To Be An "A" Candidate.

Following its brilliant run on Saturday, Cossack's Beauty has been promoted by the Stewards of the Hongkong Jockey Club to the "A" Class. The following are the changes in classification:

Golden Dawn to "B" Class, Cossack's Beauty to "A" Class, Gold Key to "C" Class, Orlando to "D" Class, Disorderly Conduct to "E" Class, Gallant Fox to "E" Class, and White Buttercup to "E" Class.

The following will represent the St. Andrew's Scout Troop in a friendly hockey match against the St. Andrew's Club Ladies on the Marina ground to-morrow (Thursday) at 5.15 p.m. sharp:—H. Millington; V. Bond, F. Winyard; J. Winyard, Mr. R. Dormer, A. L. Sanji; G. Arnold, Noel Booker, J. Mackay, L. Gibson, N. Booker.

SHANGHAI REFEREES' NEW RULING

PLAYER WITHOUT THE BALL MUST NOT BE CHARGED

"A player shall be deemed guilty of ungentlemanly conduct if he charges an opponent who is not in possession of the ball or attempting to play the ball, and if he deliberately obstructs an opponent."

This decision was made by the Shanghai Referees' Society at their October meeting, and will stand until a reply has been received to their query to the Referees' Committee of the English Football Association regarding the right of a player to charge an opponent not in possession of a ball.

Following an address by Mr. Grimshaw, several points were brought up for discussion.

It was pointed out that there was no law which forbade a player to charge an opponent, no matter how far away the ball was. It was decided to ask the Referees' Committee of the English Football Association for a decision on this point and pending a reply to their query the Society of Shanghai adopted the above ruling.

It was also decided that no substitute should be allowed for a player sent off the field for misconduct before the ball has been properly kicked off at the commencement of a game.

For the information of players it was decided to publish explanations of the following points.

The Throw In: The thrower must stand with his feet on or outside the line, i.e., both on the line, both outside it, or one on and one outside. He may raise his heels while throwing provided that this does not bring either foot inside the field, clear of the line, and that neither foot leaves the ground completely. The ball must, of course, be thrown from behind the head, with both hands.

Dangerous Play: The referee can award a free kick in any case where he considers the conduct of a player dangerous or likely to cause injury, but not sufficiently so as to justify him putting into force the greater powers vested in him under Law 9. From such a free kick a goal cannot be scored direct, since it is not awarded under Law 9. Hence a free kick may be awarded inside the penalty area for dangerous play on the part of a defender. This kick is taken in the same way as one awarded for carrying by the goal-keeper. Common examples of dangerous play are kicking at a ball near an opponent's face, and "scissor kicking" close to other players.

Players Returning to the Field: Except in case of injury no player may leave the field without the permission of the referee. Once off the field, for any cause whatever, the player cannot return until the ball is out of play. He must then report to the referee before taking part in the game.

MANY ALTERATIONS IN STARTERS AND JOCKEYS

London, Oct. 24.
Several double alterations were made in to-day's list of probable runners and jockeys for the Cambridgeshire.

Gann was earlier reported to be riding Inverman, but latest reports are that McGuigan will take the saddle. McGuigan was originally given Town Crier to ride, but Stephenson will now be the mount, whilst Tartan, which had Walsh up, is now without a jockey.

Alaenraig, which had Quick as jockey has now been omitted from the starter's list, together with Obesity, Rathlinia, Chataine, Bow and Arrow, Galapas and Effaceable.

Versicle, which was reported to be a non-starter has now been given Wells as jockey, and D. Smith will ride either The Font or Ruckmill.

Both Bow and Arrow and Galapas were scratched yesterday afternoon.—Reuter.

STRONG BATTING SIDE

LIEUT. BUTLER PLAYING

For the final Interport cricket trial on Saturday, four changes have been made in the teams which were on view last week.

T. E. Pearce is to lead an eleven against Hayward's team, and he, together with his son, T. A. Pearce, T. Redmond and Lieut. Butler, take the places of F. A. Munn, who was injured last Saturday, W. C. Hung, E. Zimmern and R. Lee.

Hayward has a very strong side, indicating that it is the probable team which will represent Hongkong in the Triangular Tournament against Malaya and Shanghai next month.

However, there seems to be room for another bowler, so that the final selection, if based on Hayward's present combination, will probably include either Burnett or Pereira.

The teams for Saturday are:

A. W. HAYWARD'S XI.
E. C. Finch
E. R. Duckitt
T. A. Pearce
P. V. William
A. W. Hayward
E. F. Finch
H. Owen Hughes
A. C. Hamilton

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

Today's Contract Problem
North and South are vulnerable, East and West are not vulnerable, holding the following hand. South opens the contracting with one spade and West makes a Sims negative double. How would you proceed with the bidding?

North: ♠ Q 6 4 ♥ Q 5
♦ A Q 5 ♣ K 6 3 2
East: ♠ 8 3 2 ♥ A 7 2
♦ 6 4 3 ♣ A Q 8
South: ♠ A K J 10 7 5 ♥ None
♦ K J 10 8 7 2 ♣ 5
West: ♠ None ♥ K J 10 9 8
♦ 6 4 3 ♣ J 10 9 7 4
Solution in next issue. 80

Solution to Previous Contract Problem

West's double of four hearts by South, in the preceding problem, is what helped the declarer to make his contract, because it gave him an idea of the distribution in trump.

The hand was played by William F. Hopkins of Cincinnati. Mr. Hopkins is one of the many experts of Cincinnati who will welcome other bridge players of the country to the National Championship Tournament of the American Bridge League in that city the week of December 4.

The Bidding
Mr. Hopkins was sitting in the North. His partner in the South opened the contracting with one club. West, who was vulnerable, did not feel safe in overcalling with one heart and passed. Mr. Hopkins in the North, however, made a one over one forcing overcall of one heart.

East bid one spade and South jumped to four hearts which West promptly doubled.

The Play
The six of spades was opened by East and won in dummy with the ace. A small club was returned and Mr. Hopkins in the North played the jack. East won the trick with the ace and returned a small club hoping that his partner could trump, but West followed. Mr. Hopkins returned the queen of clubs and when West trumped with the three of hearts he discarded his losing ten of spades.

West returned the king of spades which Mr. Hopkins in the North trumped with the deuce of hearts. He next led a low heart to the ace and East showed out. A small diamond was returned and won by North with the queen. The ace of diamonds was cashed.

then the six of diamonds played and won in dummy with the king. Mr. Hopkins then returned a small heart. West jumped in with the queen and returned the eight of spades which Mr. Hopkins trumped with the six of hearts, discarding a club from dummy. The deuce of diamonds was then trumped in dummy with the king of hearts, West being forced to under-trump with the nine. The nine of clubs was returned and when West trumped with the ten, North overtrumped with the jack.

PLEA FOR WIDOW

MAGISTRATE GIVES THE OPTION OF A FINE

Before Mr. Balfour in the Central Police Court yesterday afternoon, Mr. J. B. Prentis, of Messrs. Hastings and Co., made application for re-hearing in the case in which a widow, Lam Ngau, aged 48 years, was sentenced to six months' hard labour last Friday on charges of trafficking in women and with harbouring three girls for the purposes of prostitution.

It is recalled that the defendant was arrested on board the a.s. Tainan bound for Amoy on October 10. With her were five girls, three of whom, admitted they were prostitutes, while two were only children. The girls were interrogated and two of them admitted they were going to live in a brothel in Amoy.

Mr. Prentis said that the three girls were prostitutes and were licensed under the Canton Government. Owing to depressed conditions in Canton they were not able to keep themselves and they were going to Amoy. The Canton Government taxed these girls very highly, and as he understood it, the Government received $3 out of every $5 earned by the girls, and the remainder was divided between the keeper and the girl, each receiving one dollar.

The two younger children, he said, were the defendant's granddaughters and had been living with her. There was no question that the girls were going to be sold as prostitutes and it was fixed, that the defendant was returning to Canton at the end of the Chinese year. If he could substantiate those facts, he submitted there was no offence committed under the charges or within the ordinance.

"Not Unlawful"

Mr. Prentis continued that the business of a prostitute was carried on outside the Colony.

If a prostitute travels with her amah from one place to another port, surely the amah could not be charged with having custody. She was merely a person travelling with the girl. The profession of a prostitute was not unlawful. The only offence was the disposing of girls for a consideration for the purpose of prostitution. Of all the five girls in the case there was not that intention.

Inspector Elston: We submit that the defendant was rightly prosecuted and properly convicted.

Mr. Prentis: The defendant has not had the opportunity of defence. Her witnesses have just arrived.

Inspector Elston: The girls in this case may have been prostitutes, but that does not matter at all. The object of the ordinance is to stop exploitation of women. We disagree that the defendant was engaged as an amah. It then comes to this—it is up to the Court to prove whether she brought the girls or they brought her. One single prostitute working alone is outside the law. We submit that re-hearing should not be granted except on a point of law or reconsideration of penalty.

Mr. Prentis: I don't think any of these have been subject to cross-examination.

Inspector Elston: The defendant was asked if she had any questions to put to them.

Mr. Balfour: There were some questions asked.

Mr. Prentis went on to say that there was no evidence that any consideration was passed at all and unless consideration passed no offence was committed. The only evidence of money passing was that of one of the girls, Lam Lion-hay, who said she agreed to send what she earned to her mother in Canton. It was only in the capacity of agent that defendant agreed to take her earnings to Canton. The girl, Lam Lion-hay was entirely a free agent.

His Worship remarked he agreed entirely with Inspector Elston that re-hearing must be only on a point of law or inter-

NAZIS IN AUSTRIA

PROPAGANDA BOLDLY RESUMED

Vienna, Oct. 23.

Germany's withdrawal from the League has spurred the Nazis to the boldest deeds and propaganda, despite the increasingly severe punishment.

Swastika flags are surreptitiously unfurled on public buildings and swastikas are burnt into the mountain sides so that they are visible for miles.

A fleet of small balloons floated into Salzburg burst, scattering anti-Government leaflets.

Government henchmen are retaliating. For example, at Frohndorfen, Styria, Nazis were forced to dangle perilously at the end of a rope and obliterate a swastika which their comrades had cut in the rocks, while a group of well-known Nazi lawyers was compelled to remove a painted swastika facing the railway station.—Reuter.

pretation of the ordinance.

Decision Upheld.
Evidence was called after which his Worship upheld his decision, and confirmed the sentence of six months.

Mr. Prentis, in asking for leniency, said it had been proved that defendant was only engaged as an amah for one of the prostitutes, and that it was only a coincidence that she was asked by the other girls to let them accompany her to Amoy. He submitted that the evidence against defendant of harbouring—if harbouring it was—would show that it was purely a technical offence. The evidence had also shown that she derived no gain at all.

Mr. Balfour: I see no reason to reduce the sentence.

Mr. Prentis: Will your Worship consider the option of a fine?

Mr. Balfour: Have you any objection, Inspector Elston?—No, your Worship.

A fine of $250 or six months was then imposed.

MASS DESERTION

COMIC SCENE ON THE WATERFRONT

RECRUITS DASH FOR LIBERTY

Mass desertion, and no bones about it, provided an extraordinary scene on the waterfront this afternoon when the s.s. Tin Yat came alongside her wharf from Canton.

Her third class accommodation was packed with Chinese soldiers, destined for the XIXth Route Army. Before the Tin Yat had time to form a link with the shore by gangways, the men poured out from the ship from every available opening on to the wharf and fled into the street, discarding their uniforms and equipment as they ran.

OFFICER BOWLED OVER.

A lieutenant, apparently in charge of the party, tried to stop the rush, but he was simply swept aside and bowled over by the almost solid phalanx. Coolies who had come down looking for employment as luggage-carriers were dealt with in similarly unceremonious fashion.

Once into the street, the soldiers scattered in all directions, some trusting to their feet, others engaging rickshaws and other jumping upon a passing tram.

ROAD LITTERED.

Within a few minutes of the ship's arrival, there was not a soldier to be seen, although the Praya was littered with their equipment.

The whole party, it is understood, were recruits intended to fill the gaps created by the heavy losses suffered by the XIXth Army in the Fukien campaign against the Reds. They were to have left for Foochow this afternoon.

PRESSED MEN?

Their actions on arriving in Hongkong suggest that press gangs had been at work, for at their first chance for a bid for liberty, they took it as one man.

The last seen of the affair by a Telegraph representative was a disconsolate Chinese army officer looking pensively at the pile of uniforms, blankets etc. discarded by his troops in their flight and afterwards collected together.

WARSHIP NEARLY SUNK

OFFICERS MISSING AND MANY INJURED

CUT NEARLY IN TWO

Washington, Oct. 25.
THE U.S.S. CHICAGO, ONE OF THE MOST MODERN OF CRUISERS IN THE AMERICAN NAVY, WAS NEARLY SUNK YESTERDAY IN A COLLISION WITH A BRITISH OIL-TANKER.

The cruiser, although the bigger ship, was badly damaged. The tanker struck her broadside on, and tore a huge hole in her hull.

Two officers of the U.S.S. Chicago are missing and several members of the crew are lying seriously injured in the hospital to which they were rushed as soon as the cruiser reached safe harbour.

"MYSTERY" CRUISE

SUBMARINE AS ESCORT

CHAKSANG'S PRECIOUS CARGO

The secret of the "mystery cruise" of H. M. Submarine Oswald was revealed to-day—she was detailed as an escort for the s.s. Chaksang coming to Hongkong from Shanghai with a precious cargo of $4,500,000 worth of silver bullion.

It is said to be the largest single consignment ever brought here. The Chaksang's cargo was the first consignment of a total of $7,250,000. British Government money, covering loan on the issue of local banknotes, which has been lying in Shanghai pending the arrangement of suitable accommodation in Hongkong. The money was unloaded yesterday and is to be kept in the vaults of the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation in the old City Hall.

SILVER DOLLARS.

The bullion on the Chaksang which comprised of silver dollars was stored in 911 boxes each containing between 3,000 and 4,000 coins, in the hold of the Chaksang. It was kept securely bolted and under the care of a Russian armed guard.

H.M.S. Oswald accompanied the Chaksang to Hongkong and was in constant communication by semaphore signals during the whole trip. When the Chaksang put into Swatow the Oswald waited outside but remained in wireless touch.

TYPHOON WEATHER.

Originally it was intended that the Oswald should visit Japan, but during the trip north from Shanghai, typhoon weather intervened, and the submarine was forced to take shelter for two days. Under the circumstances the Japanese tour was cancelled and the ship was ordered to return to Hongkong.

In view of the precious nature of the Chaksang's cargo, stated to be the largest single consignment of bullion ever brought to Hongkong, the naval authorities were, we understand, asked to provide an escort for the steamer to Hongkong, and Oswald was accordingly detailed for the work.

ANOTHER CONSIGNMENT.

Another consignment of bullion arrives on the Liancheng this afternoon at about 4.30 p.m.

It was rumoured that the total amount of silver to be removed to Hongkong from Shanghai was in the region of $10,000,000 but verification of this figure cannot be obtained.

The collision occurred off San Pedro, California, and fuller details are not yet available.

The British oil-tanker concerned in the mishap was the Silver Palm, well-known on the California coast, a vessel of about six thousand tons.

Her bows penetrated to the U.S.S. Chicago's midship line. In other words, she drove half-way through the cruiser, nearly cutting her in two!

The Silver Palm must have been travelling at full speed to have hit the other vessel with such force. Her own bows were stove in, but she seems to have escaped with considerable less damage than the Chicago, which was in peril of sinking.

No trace has been discovered of the two missing officers and it is presumed that they were hurled into the water, probably injured beforehand, and drowned.

MODERN CRUISER.

The U.S.S. Chicago is a modern 9,300-ton cruiser, completed in March, 1931. She is fitted as a flagship and is the biggest craft of her class, being 600 feet overall. The class has not been given a good reputation for behaviour. They are credited with excessive rolling owing to the centre of gravity being placed too low.

The Silver Palm is a much smaller ship than the Chicago, but the manner of the collision enabled her to escape with comparatively minor damage.—Reuter.

WATERLOO BRIDGE DECISION

L.C.C. to Recondition Old Structure

London, Oct. 24.
At to-day's meeting of the London County Council, a scheme submitted by the Improvements Committee for the reconditioning of Waterloo Bridge by means of a process of "corbelling out" on the existing bridge, at an estimated cost of $385,000 was adopted without a division.—British Wireless.

BANDITS RALLY AT FUNING

Tientsin, Oct. 25.
Bandit suppression work in Luntung is not proving so successful as was expected.

After the first blow from the Chinese police forces, the bandits are rallying in the vicinity of the city of Funing and engaged in a severe fight with the Police there yesterday morning. It is feared that fighting will develop in intensity.—Central News.

HEAVY NICKEL PURCHASES

SIGNIFICANT FIGURES

Ottawa, Oct. 25.
A representative of I. G. Farben Industrie has arrived in Canada with authority to purchase large supplies of Canadian nickel.

The representative states that his firm is sponsoring a new process of refining nickel.

Much comment has, however, been aroused in Canada and elsewhere lately by revelations of the remarkable increase in the exports of nickel from Canada, and specific attention is drawn to the fact that nickel is an important element in the manufacture of munitions.

Official figures show that 513,000 cwt. of nickel was exported during the first six months of 1933 as compared with 128,000 cwt. during the same period of 1932.

It is also of interest to note that the exports to Germany of 2,557 cwt. have been doubled.—Reuter.

WOMAN ARTIST'S DEATH

WELL KNOWN A.R.A. PASSES

VIADUCT MISHAP

London, Oct. 25.
Nineteen passengers and the engine-driver and fireman were to-day killed in a disaster to the French express proceeding from Cherbourg to Paris.

The disaster occurred when the train was crossing a viaduct and the engine and tender fell into the water below while eight coaches were overturned.

The fortunate feature of the tragedy was that the engine became detached from the train and did not drag the coaches down with it to destruction. In this event the death toll must have been much heavier.

As it was, many persons were injured 11 seriously, and they were detained at Evreux Hospital. It is understood that no English or Americans were among the casualties.—British Wireless.

NAVAL TENSION DENIED

VOLUNTEER RESERVE CONNEXION

Reuter is authoritatively informed in London that a report appearing in a London evening newspaper of alleged naval tension in the Pacific, and the assumption that the formation of a Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve in Hongkong is connected with the alleged tension, is entirely unwarranted.

All that is taking place, it was stated, is that a Volunteer Reserve is being formed and a Navy Week is being organised in this connexion in Hongkong from October 28, similar to the Navy Week in Great Britain.

NORWEGIAN SHIP WRECKED

ON ROCKS OFF ABERDEEN

MASTER STICKS TO SHIP

London, Oct. 24.
The Norwegian steamer Granero ran aground on the Kincardineshire Rocks late last night, and she was badly damaged.

The vessel now lies in an exceedingly precarious position, being steadily pounded by rough seas, and it is thought that she may become a total wreck.

The crew and most of the officers have been ordered to abandon ship, but the Captain and one officer are still remaining on board in the hope that the weather may abate, giving a prospect of salvage.

The Aberdeen lifeboat and life-saving crew are standing by the apparently doomed craft, waiting to take off the Captain and officer if peril threatens.—British Wireless.

NEW ISSUE TO BE MADE

At to-morrow's meeting of the Legislative Council, the Colonial Treasurer will move—

That the Council, in exercise of its powers under section 6 of Ordinance No. 9 of 1925, consents to the authorised capital of the Hongkong Telephone Company Limited, being increased from its present capital of $5,000,000 divided into 500,000 shares of $10 each, to $7,500,000 divided into 750,000 shares of $10 each.

That the Council consents to the proposal of the said Company to give to shareholders an option of subscribing to the new issue of capital at a ratio of one new share for every two existing shares held by them, and to the further proposal of the said Company to make such new issue of capital on the payment of $2.50 per share in the first instance leaving the balance to be called up from time to time as may be required.

HONEYMOONERS LOSE DINGHY

Breaks Loose From Yacht at Chung I

A dinghy broke loose and drifted away from the yacht Mistral while it was lying off Chung I Island on the night of the 17th.

The yacht belongs to Mr. C. B. Easterbrook, who with his bride, the former Miss Audrey Sykes, was on a honeymoon cruise.

The loss was reported to the Police on the return of the couple to Hongkong yesterday.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

SUITS LIKE THESE FOR LAD AND LASS MAKE THEM EAGER TO GO TO CLASS

NEW TOGS FOR SCHOOL ARE SMARTLY MADE—
(PUPILS IN LINEN WILL MAKE THE GRADE)

A little boy should start to school
So simply dressed that he Won't lose a button, tear a seam
'Til after half-past three.
And if he has short linen pants
That fasten to a shirt
Of cotton stuff that's loose and white,
And doesn't pick up dirt,
He'll learn to read and write and spell,
Or take it on the nose
(When he gets in an alley fight.)
Unhampered by his clothes!

Little girls should wear wide skirts
With pleats sewn half-way down,
(They fasten like the grown-up skirts
You see around the town.)
The cotton shirt is white and it
Has buttons in a row;
The neck's a Peter Pan affair,
The collar, as you know,
Is fashioned for a small boy's shirt—
No girl will want to miss
A single day of school, you'll find,
If she is dressed like this!

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

Picking Lipstick

By Alicia Hart

Two things are all important when it comes to choosing a new lipstick. First, the colour should be just right. Second, it should be a brand which will stay on your lips.

There is no use using a lipstick that will rub off on your handkerchiefs or your hostess' best linen napkins. Now-a-days you can get lipsticks which are not greasy, messy things that "smear" or rub off on everything.

They are more like a dye than a grease paint.

Choose a colour the same shade your lips would be if they had a natural high colour. When you go to buy a lipstick, ask the shop assistant to give you a hand mirror. Rub your lips vigorously with the back of your hand and then look in the mirror to scrutinize the colour which the rubbing has brought into them. The lipstick you then buy should be exactly the colour of your lips.

Always dry your lips with a piece of cleansing tissue before you start to apply makeup.
Never put on lipstick when they are wet, or even slightly moist.
You won't get an even, smooth effect if you do.

Follow the natural contour with the lipstick. Rough edges can be smoothed away with your forefinger covered with cleansing tissue.

Allow at least ten minutes for the lipstick to dry before you moisten your lips. You'll be surprised how much longer it stays on if you work along these lines.

CHAPTER VIII

"The Peculiar Behaviour of Luigi"

Leonard Sefton and Beryl Haines formed a fine advertisement for the exuberance of swimming that evening over dinner, for although among diners these two possessed the grimmest secret knowledge, they provided the gayest tone. Old Mr. Griddle, sitting at his favourite corner table, remarked to Luigi that, if only he were a little younger, he would be tempted to try the effect of before-dinner bathing himself.

"We've not been so lively for a week," he observed. "This new arrival is certainly cheering us all up a bit."

"E is ver—how you say?—live 'eried, yes," agreed Luigi, rather absently.

"Well, don't you think it a good thing?" asked Mr. Griddle, rather sharply. Luigi's tone had not been particularly enthusiastic.

"Si, si!" repeated the waiter, grinning galvanically. "E laugh a lot."

"And laughter's what we want," interposed Mr. Griddle. "It seems to me you could do with a little more, Luigi! Now, now—you'll have my glass over with your elbow in a minute!"

"Pardon!" muttered Luigi. "All ze—it upset me. In Italy, I laugh. All ze time, yes! But, ere—?"

He shook his head, possibly in sympathy with the hand that was pouring out Mr. Griddle's burgundy, for that shook, too.

"It's time you stopped feeling upset, then," remarked the old man, dryly. "Unless anything fresh has happened to-day? Eh? Has it?"

Luigi did not reply at once. He appeared to be very intent upon the business of wine-pouring. Then, as he saw Mr. Griddle's eyes upon him, he suddenly answered:

"To-day? Oh, no! Nosing 'appen now. All over."

As he hurried away to attend to the table where the Haineses were sitting, a burst of laughter arose.

"Jolly good, jolly good!" cried the voice of Napoleon Trufove.

"But I've just thought of a riddle better than that—"

"It's got to be original!" exclaimed Beryl Haines. "Mine was."

"Oh, it's quite original—I've only just made it up," Napoleon assured her. "At least, I got the idea when I came across a broken bicycle in the old shed here. Silly as I am—now I'm giving it away, before I begin—"

"Well, for heaven's sake, old chap,

do begin," pleaded Guy.

"Right—here goes," said Napoleon, clearing his voice. "The question's a bit long, but the answer's worth it. A fellow went out on a bicycle, and there was an accident. Got that?"

"Yes."

"All right. Now, the accident was all because the man and his bicycle disagreed. They disagreed about how they should travel. Got that?"

"No."

"Well, never mind. The question is—how did they disagree? How did each of them want to travel?"

"I say, Nappy, how many riddle is this?" enquired Beryl, politely. "It seems like a dozen."

"Well, the answer's good, anyway," retorted Napoleon. "Listen. How did they travel? Now, then, the man bicycled, and the bicycle bust. B-u-s-t—B-u-s-t—B-u-s-t—"

"And now there's another accident!" exclaimed Guy, amid loud groans of disapproval. "I don't wonder you knocked that roll over, Luigi, after hearing such a vile riddle as that!"

Luigi picked up the roll, apologising, and replaced it by another. He certainly was behaving very clumsily this evening. When the meal was over, Leonard sought Miss Fyne in her office, and remarked upon it.

"Your Italian waiter's full of nerves to-night," he said. "Is he always like this?"

"He's never exactly pacific," replied Jessica Fyne, smiling slightly, "but then I've only had him a few days; so I don't know his ordinary habits. Why, what has he been doing?"

"All the things that a proper, well-regulated waiter should not do," answered Leonard. "Upsetting rolls, and bringing the wrong dishes. . . . Where did you pick him up?"

"He applied for the job after my last waiter had his accident."

"Oh, yes—I think you told me. Were his references all right?"

"Yes, they seemed so. But I didn't have time to go into them very seriously—you see, it was just after my father disappeared—and, then, I had to have someone. I was very glad he came."

Leonard nodded. "Yes—he chose an auspicious moment, didn't he? Are you satisfied with him?"

"I think so."

"That means you're not quite. I'm not, Miss Fyne. I'm not satisfied with him at all."

"Why, what do you mean?"

"I'll tell you presently—but, of course, I may be all wrong. First, I'd like to have a word or two with your most youthful retainer, if I may. Will you send for him?"

She stretched her hand and pressed the bell-push thrice.

While they were waiting for Jim to appear she asked, abruptly:

"Did you enjoy your swim, Mr. Sefton?"

"Very much," he answered.

"You reached the wrock?"

"Yes—and was nearly late for dinner, in consequence. I suppose you swim, Miss Fyne?"

"Until a week ago I bathed regularly, before breakfast."

"But now you've no time?"

"Or inclination."

"I see. Yes, I understand. But I think it would be an excellent plan if you resumed the practice to-morrow. You must look after yourself, you know—you must give me a chance to help your spirit."

"Ah, here comes Jim. How he must hate carpets!"

"Why?" she enquired.

"They don't show foot-prints," he replied.

Jim stood before them solemnly and expectantly. Mr. Sefton had described him as the Record Department, and he wondered whether the contents of his precious book were about to be further consulted. But Leonard's first question was not concerning the note-book.

"Have you told anybody about our disappearing corpse, Jim?" he asked.

"No, Sir," answered the boy.

"Not a soul?"

"Not nobody, sir. You told me not to. I ain't even told Looey."

"Luigi!" exclaimed Leonard, sharply. "Why do you mention him?"

"Well, sir, 'cos he asks me wot 'appened, but I didn't tell 'im nothin'."

"No, I still haven't got this straight," said Leonard. "Why should Luigi ask you? Does he know anything about it?"

"Yesir. When I fust comes up arter seel'n—arter seel'n 'im, yer know—I meets Looey in the road."

"You didn't tell me that. Then Luigi knows what you found at the foot of the gap?"

"Yesir. I told 'im."

"He was on the lawn when Jim spoke to me," interposed Jessica.

"Yes, I remember. I saw him."

But I didn't realise that Jim had spoken to him, and Jim didn't mention it."

"Ought I to 'ave, sir?" murmured Jim, depressed.

"No reason at all why you should 'ave," answered Leonard, smiling suddenly, "and I'm not saying it's of any importance." He considered for a moment. "Then Luigi's the only member of the staff who knows, besides you, eh?"

"Yesir."

"I suppose you're quite sure of that, Jim? Quite, quite sure?"

"Yesir."

"None of the maids, or the cook—"

"None of 'em, sir, 'cos if they knowed, they'd be torkin' about it or the time, don't I know 'em?"

"Good enough," replied Leonard, while Jessica watched him and wondered exactly what was at the back of his mind. "Now, just one more question, young man, and then you can go. Is your note-book absolutely private, or would you mind letting me have a glance at it? I've a notion it might be quite helpful—you're really quite a smart little chap, at making notes."

Jim swallowed with pride, and put his hand into his pocket. But the pride left his face the next moment.

"Golly!" he exclaimed, in elegant under emotion. "It's 'sorn!"

Leonard frowned, and he glanced at Jessica.

"That's a nuisance," he remarked. "But perhaps you've just laid it down somewhere, and forgotten."

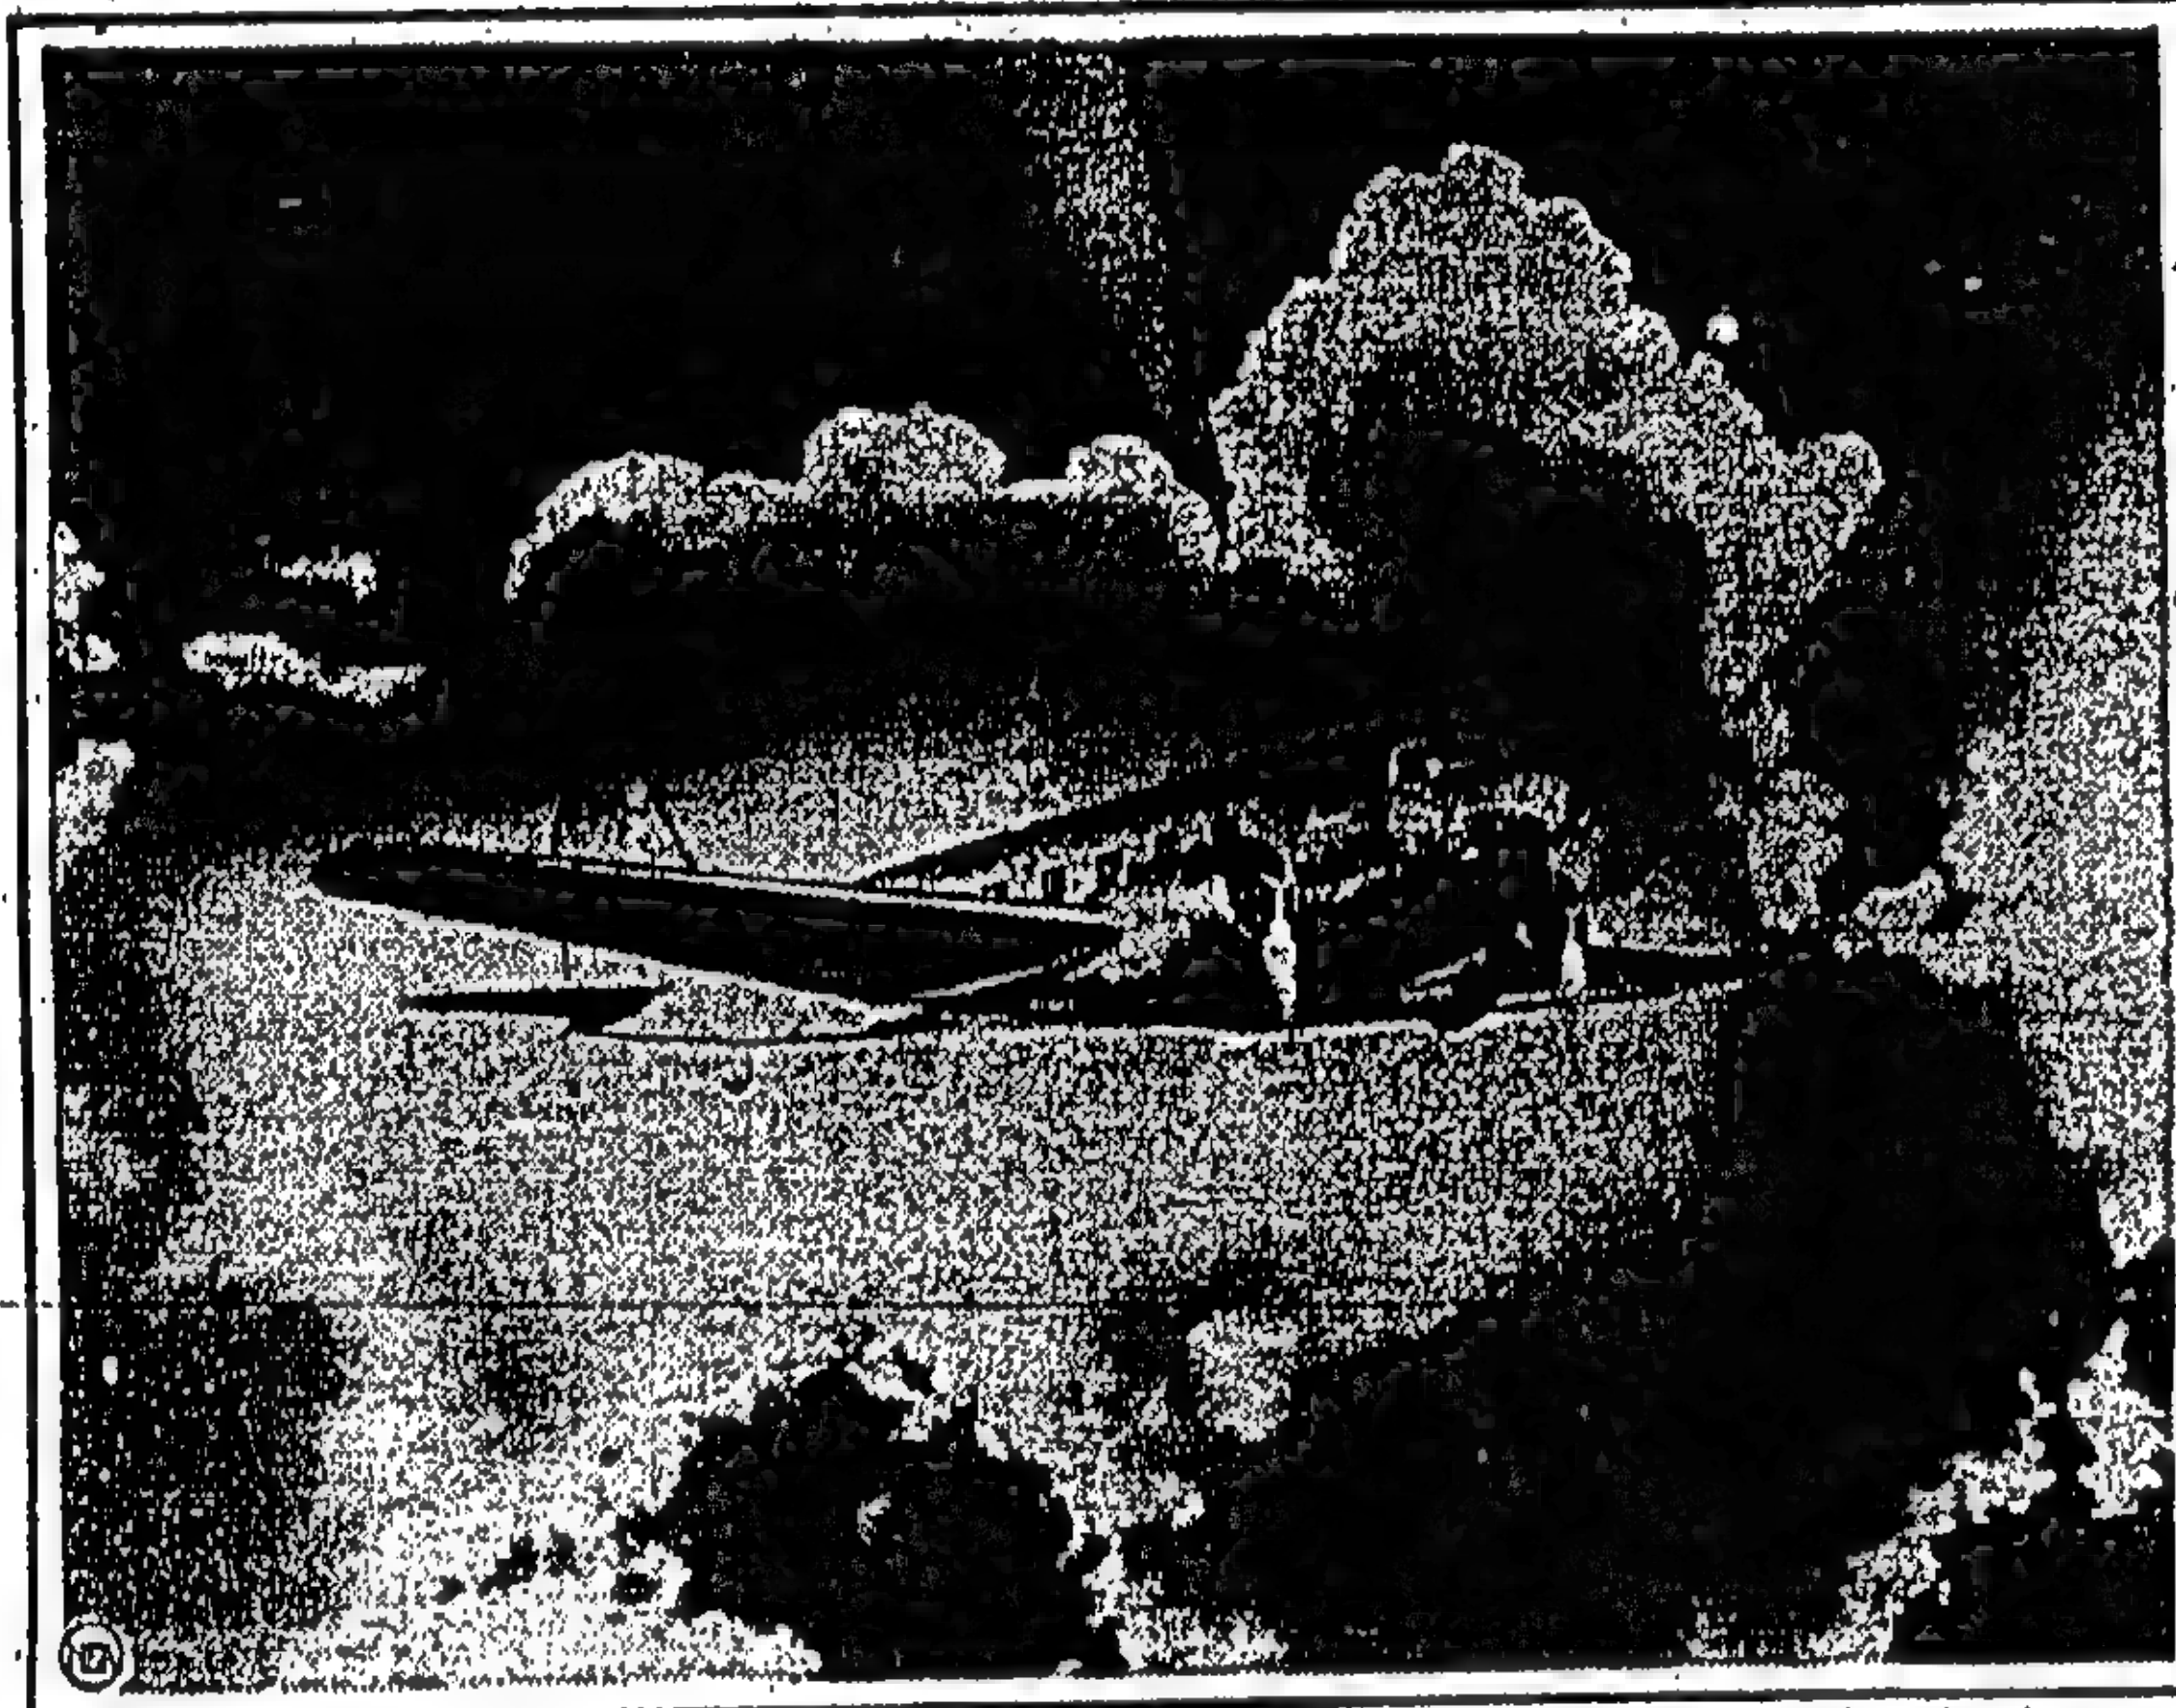

"No, sir—it was in my pocket!" exclaimed the boy, excitedly. "Some'un's took it!" His voice quivered with indignation; yet there was something rather pleasant in the situation, to counteract his grief. For who would trouble to steal a note-book unless the note-book were valuable. And who but Jim had increased the value of the note-book beyond the humble penny he had paid for it?

"Well, see if you can find it, Jim," said Leonard. "Now you've got a definite job. I want you to bring me your book, or the name of—"

MALAYAN CHAMPIONSHIP WON

British Record Broken with the help of PHOSFERINE

CHAMPION

Ooi Leong Teik, writes:—

"It is with the greatest pleasure that I write to testify to the benefits I have received by taking Phosferine during my training for the 1931 Malayan Weight-Lifting Championships.

As I had to reduce some seven or eight pounds off my normal bodyweight in order to enable me to compete in the 9-stone class, I had to go into very strenuous training, and with the help of Phosferine, I not only won the championship of that class, but also the individual Championship, and, in addition I broke a British Record.

I therefore have no hesitation in recommending Phosferine to any physical culturist or athlete, whether he be in ordinary training or preparing for a competition, as it GIVES ENERGY AND ENDURANCE AND RENEWS BROKEN-DOWN TISSUE."

CONFLICTING REPORTS OF BATTLE TIDE

Singapore, Oct. 24.
News from Siam regarding the progress of the revolution is most conflicting. There are many reports now that the rebels are gaining ground.

The latest message which has evaded the strict censorship is that the King and Queen have
Huahin for Singora in South
Siam. They were afraid, it appears, that the rebels would capture them.

The entire country in the north is strongly sympathetic to Prince Bovarat, the leader of the revolt. Himself a member of the reigning family, him the rebels aim to place on the throne,
alleging:

"Our King is quite incapable of administering the state. He is not master of his own feelings.
He allows commoners to displace
members of the Royal Family."

Recent reports said that Prince Bovarat had fled from the scene of action following the defeat of
his forces.—Reuters.

FIERCE FIGHTING

POLICE ENCOUNTER WITH BANDITS

Peking, Oct. 24.
Fierce fighting is in progress between the special police and the bandits in the Luntung area
two miles north of Funing, following a general attack by the Government troops yesterday evening. A detachment is still engaged with the bandits holding the summit of the mountain overlooking Funing, where the outlaws
have dug three trenches.

The bandits on the summit are reported to be keeping captive
twenty young men whom they kidnapped during their marauding exploits. The bandit forces in Funing itself are estimated at a thousand.

Supplies of food and fuel in the town are running short and its fall is expected at any moment.

A Japanese plane yesterday bombed the bandit forces, who immediately displayed Japanese and Manchukuo flags on the walls, in the hope of averting further raids.—Reuters.

SHE DIDN'T HAVE TO SAY IT

Little Helen had just returned from the first party which she had ever been allowed to attend. Anxious to know if she maintained the family dignity, her mother questioned her concerning her behaviour.

"I hope you remembered to say "No, thank you!" and "Yes, please!"
said the careful parent.

"I said "Yes, please!" but I didn't have to say "No, thank you!" because I took everything," was the artless reply!

Children, in many ways, are primitive beings, and it is remarkable how they will go on eating the things they like even though they are replete to a point of discomfort. After such occasions, a dose of Baby's Own Tablets is a precaution well worth while. This splendid children's health regulator will quickly relieve the congestion, cleanse the food tract and ensure that no harm results. In the prescribed doses, Baby's Own Tablets quickly relieve infantile indigestion and constipation, banish "wind" and colic, check diarrhoea, allay feverishness, colds and croup. During teething they are a great boon to parents and children alike, easing the pains and thus enabling baby to enjoy sound, health-giving sleep. No parents should be without this reliable and pleasant tasting children's health safeguard.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 25, 1933.

THE FRENCH CRISIS

The fall of the Daladier Government is not surprising. The storm has long been brewing owing to fundamental antagonism between the Socialist and the Radical conceptions of Budget-balancing proposals. It was delayed by the process of postponing controversy and allowing the 1933 deficit to mount up, no effort being made to check it. France therefore finds herself in a relatively more serious plight than nine months ago, with her Government credit weakened and the stability of the franc threatened, a dangerous situation which is the direct outcome of long and continued failure to face the financial situation squarely and impose the necessary economies in expenditure. Any successor to M. Daladier will be confronted by the same difficulties. He cannot succeed in averting the serious position unless he introduces an unpopular measure. It needs a change of outlook, of which there is as yet no sign. Something of the French wartime spirit of sacrifice is required to avoid financial disaster. The appearances point to a combination of the Radicals with the Right, with the possibility of a series of short-lived Ministers. It can only be hoped that there will not be a break in foreign policy, although even that is not assured. The best prospects for a settlement in Europe rested with a continuance of the Daladier Ministry. In the meantime, however, domestic issues will dominate the French political field and France must continue in a state of fever financial until her leaders agree upon a remedy. The time for palliatives has passed long since. Everyone who has been acquainted with the facts had long foreseen that any government which failed to tackle the problem would fail. Party quarrels and the resultant undermining of confidence has worsened the situation. What France needs is not political finance but financial policy. It is not the political doctrines of the Left or the political doctrines of the Right which will bring about a better condition of affairs. It is necessary that all Frenchmen should forget their differences, should realize that if the country is to be saved from disaster, they must seek, in no partisan spirit, but with a single eye to national interests, the solution of the exceedingly grave problems that have been neglected for so long.

NOTES OF THE DAY

U.S. MONETARY POLICY

President Roosevelt's monetary policy has shocked orthodox finance, as was only to be expected. The alarm arises from the fact that in the new experiment to be tried, money is to be treated in a manner never before attempted, and although it is admitted that the essence of President Roosevelt's plans is to make money the servant instead of the master, the servant is to be treated in a manner never before attempted, and although it is admitted that the essence of President Roosevelt's plans is to make money the servant instead of the master, the servant is to be treated in a manner never before attempted.

SENSIBLE ENOUGH

The avowed objective is plain and sensible enough. The President aims to bring an end to wild price fluctuations, to produce a price that will be worth when paid back exactly what it was worth when borrowed; he seeks the creation of a monetary system under which trade and industry can operate with some degree of regularity. It is obvious that the attempt may work and on the other hand, it may not; but behind there stands the plain fact that the system the world has been using has not worked. America may be jumping into the fire, but at least she is jumping out of an unendurable hot frying pan. Most of British criticism rests less upon the merits of the experiment than upon the fact that it leaves out of all consideration any linking of the dollar with other foreign currencies.

ECONOMIC ISOLATION

No one can doubt that further economic isolation, which would naturally follow for some considerable time upon the success of the new dollar experiment, would be bad for the world as a whole, setting up further barriers to free international trade intercourse. But President Roosevelt is merely standing by the principle laid down at the World Economic Conference, that his own house must be put in order before he can contribute towards general measures of revival. Selfish in conception, it may be, but this attitude was the one which most big countries accepted at the Conference, and whether it was dictated by President Roosevelt or not makes very little difference. The policy outlined by President Roosevelt is not one of his own devising. It is substantially a programme recommended by advanced economic thinkers for some time past, although they have been regarded as voices crying in the wilderness. The United States is determined to attempt to put the theory into practice. And it is still a matter of opinion as to whether President Roosevelt is moving too fast or others are moving too slowly.

AMERICA AND LEAGUE

In the present period of international tension the relationship of the United States with the League of Nations seem to require re-definition. The present contacts of Washington with Geneva abound in anomalies and inconsistencies. The United States is not a member of the League. Yet so many Americans have been spokesmen in Geneva that it is sometimes difficult for the League to know where to turn for an authoritative expression of American opinion or policy. In spite of numerous channels of communication, the representatives of the United States are not permitted to raise their voices where they are most needed or desired. It is necessary to resort to subtleties or take refuge in technicalities in order that normal relations between the United States and League organs may be established.

COUNCIL COMEDY

It has now been decided that the American Minister to Switzerland, Mr. Hugh Wilson, whose post is at Bern, but who is obliged to spend about half his time in Geneva, will sit on the League Council to choose an American member of the Permanent Central Opium Board. But it is explained that he will not be really sitting on the Council, for the Council on this occasion will not call itself. It is for a special committee sitting for a specific purpose. The last time an American sat at the Council table, it was not the American Minister to Switzerland who occupied the extra chair. It was the American consul at Geneva, Mr. Frontias Gilbert, who has been equipped with a special staff of qualified assistants in order to keep in intimate touch with activities. League officials and delegates from other countries find some amusement in speculating who the next American spokesman will be.

FINANCE OF INDIAN FEDERATION

Cost of White Paper Utopia

By DOUGLAS DEWAR

SIR Malcolm Halley recently drew up a memorandum entitled "The Financial Implications of (1) Provincial Autonomy and (2) Federation."

The memorandum, although limited in scope, contains sufficient information to demonstrate that, for many days to come, India will not be wealthy enough to receive and maintain the white elephant bred by the late Socialist Government, and nursed by their successors.

Sir Malcolm estimates that the Provinces, if they are to run as self-supporting units, will require between them an additional sum of from Rs. 6 to 8 crores ($2,500,000 to $3,000,000) a year, but "it must be realised, even with this provision, some of the Provinces will start off on a bare subsistence level." As the provincial sources of taxation are yielding already their maximum return, the Local Governments will not be able to raise this sum, or any part thereof; the whole will have to be found by the Central Government. The extra expenditure at the Centre is estimated by Sir Malcolm to be from Rs. 2½ to 3½ crores ($1,875,000 to $2,500,000) a year.

This is not the whole story. Sir Malcolm does not deal with the effect of the White Paper proposals on the Indian revenues, except to mention that they will entail a loss of Rs. 1 crore per annum in currency receipts; and he is silent as to the effect of the change in administration on India's credit. The handing over of control to the Indians must for obvious reasons result in a fall in the Government revenues. Doubtless many British officials who dislike the White Paper proposals will retire on proportionate pensions. One hundred and ninety of them did so during the first year of the Montagu-Chelmsford reforms, when, unlike those now proposed, affected only a portion of the Indian officials.

Such retirements will not only increase the expenditure on pensions, but will diminish the efficiency of the administration, as many posts will be filled by inexperienced men. Dishonest subordinates will take advantage of this, and there will be many financial irregularities, leading to loss of revenue. Such irregularities occur in almost every office in which supervision is lax; as the reports on the working of the Local Boards under Indian control show. The fact that over two million people are caught every year travelling without tickets on the main Indian railways shows that many of the inhabitants of that country are ready to feather their nest at the expense of others.

The handing over of the Police to Indian control will afford a grand opportunity for crime of all sorts; dacoities, burglaries, and riots are not conducive to good trade, and are likely to affect the revenue adversely. Clearly, then, if the proposed "reforms" be effected, the Indian Governments will have to face both increase of expenditure and fall in revenue.

"It is clear," says Sir Malcolm Halley, "that some considerable betterment of Central Finance, and on an assured basis, must take place before the Centre can make the surrenders necessary to establish the Provinces as independent financial units on such terms as will allow them to rest securely on their own resources." The Secretary of State for India, when trying to make the best of a bad business, said to the Joint Committee on July 6: "After all, my Lord Chairman, we are balancing our Budget."

Let us see how this has been done. The revised estimates for 1932-33 show a surplus of Rs. 2.17 crores (over $1,500,000). A 10 per cent. cut in the pay of all Indian officials resulted in a saving of Rs. 2.50 crores. The expenditure on Military services last year was Rs. 46.74 crores as opposed to Rs. 68.91 crores in 1922-23. When the military expenditure was cut down from the latter figure to Rs. 55 crores in 1923-24, the Commander-in-Chief said this involved "a certain degree of risk," but he felt this was justified in view of the financial plight of India. In 1928 the Government of India said that Rs. 55 crores a year was the lowest possible expenditure if "India is to make reasonable provision for her defence in modern conditions." Nevertheless, last year Rs. 8½ crores less than this minimum was spent. One crore of this is attributable to fall in prices, the remainder means "depletion of stocks of supplies and the postponement of building and other programmes."

On the revenue side the figures of last year's Budget are swollen by Rs. 1.50 crores for receipts on salt, which, but for the extinction of the credit system, would not have been paid until this year; and Rs. 13 crores are "attributable to the recent 'emergency' surcharges on Customs, Taxes on Income and salt." Owing to the unsatisfactory condition of Central finance in 1931, these surcharges were imposed whereby the Salt Tax was increased by 40 per cent., Income Tax by 25 per cent., and Import Duties by 66 per cent., and the pay of all officials reduced by 10 per cent. These surcharges were to be limited to two years, but they still exist, although in the current year the cut in pay has been halved. Thus, there must be an enormous betterment of India's finances before the White Paper white elephant can be entertained.

Meanwhile, there are other financial obstacles to be overcome. The currency problem is to be solved by a Reserve Bank, to which the Central Government has subscribed Rs. 40 crores (over $30,000,000). The Central Government owes something like 90 crores of rupees, which are payable on demand; i.e., the amount of the Post-Office Savings Bank deposits and cash certificates outstanding. When the War broke out in 1914 there were no cash certificates, but the withdrawals of Post Office Savings Bank deposits were heavy. During August, September, and

The Very Idea!

CAUGHT OUT.

By Eddie Kelly, M.C.C.

INTERPORT cricket trial, we read in the Telegraph, was a failure, because the unlucky batsmen weren't sent in first.

We don't know what it all means, but we feel peeved about the matter.

Cricket should be taken more seriously than this. Look how seriously the Australians take it. You don't see our friends in the Antipathies having interport failures.

Hongkong cricketers pay too much attention to the batting and bowling. Cricket should be livened up a bit.

For instance, animal cricketers sing by rubbing their hind legs together. Let's introduce a little variety into the local game by having our players do the same thing.

Probably half our cricketers don't know the meaning of the word "cricket." What we know about cricket mayn't fill the "Very Idea" column, but there's no harm in trying. Besides, we feel like imparting some knowledge this afternoon.

BAT.—Old-fashioned instrument used to protect the legs. Also useful for brainning wicket-keeper, or bashing bowler as you pass him.

BODY-LINE.—Imaginary line separating stomach from lower limbs. A hit above the body-line counts extra. BODY-LINE is also called (censored) and (wiped out) and (unprintable word) in Australia, but these expressions are not recommended for Hongkong.

BOWLER.—Old-fashioned hat. M.C.C.—Latin for 1200. This is the year Yorkshire defeated Lancashire.

PLAYER.—Favourite brand of cigarettes. Hence "GASPER" is a wretched player. See also Captain, or Captain.

GENTLEMEN.—Meaning obscure. Men have not been gentle at cricket since BODY-LINE (q.v.) was introduced.

CREASE.—Neat fold in trousers. STUMP.—Amputated leg of one-legged cricketer. The player is said to be "stumped" in a match if he had a leg before.

CHANGE OF BOWLERS.—Hats that have become mixed. Generally played in the Hongkong Club. INNINGS.—The time it takes to get a side out. Generally half an hour after the bar closes.

EXTRAS.—Payment for early morning tea, cigarettes, liquors etc. Also includes Cumsaw.

LONG STOP.—Takes place at conclusion of match.

MAIDEN.—Girl cricketers. LEG-GLANCE.—Glance in the direction of a girl cricketer when she is fielding somewhere to leg.

POINT.—Business end of the stump.

SILLY POINT.—Calling an end of a stump the business end is silly.

NO BALL.—No ball available. The game must thereupon be abandoned.

WICKET.—Term applied to any cricketer who does naughty things. LEG BEFORE WICKET.—A girl in a bathing costume standing in front of Eddie Kelly.

STUMPED.—Well, even if we are, we managed to fill out three-quarters of a column.

ENGLAND EXPECTS

We were walking down Connaught Road with Robert MacWhirter on Saturday, when one of those pretty skirts in sailor's rigouts pulled us up.

"Buy a bag?" she appealed to Mac.

"No speak da Engleesh!" he replied.

A SLUG IN THE EYE

The other day we had an article about Gardening. A correspondent, who claims he is sixty per cent. of our readers, wrote in asking us if we could give him a good cure for slugs, as they were eating up all the radishes in his kitchen garden. We advised him to get a few lbs. of salt and sprinkle it between the rows. The following letter arrived to-day:

Dear Kelly.—Your cure for slugs was a wash-out. When I went to look at the garden this morning, the slugs were pulling up the radishes, dipping them in the salt, and eating them!

RAUCOUS SHOP ADVERTISEMENT BROADCASTS

ACTION TO BE TAKEN

ORDINANCE AMENDMENT PROPOSED

PROHIBITION

The raucous blaring of shop "broadcasts" in the Chinese business districts is to be prohibited.

The Ordinance created in Queen's Road every night has brought many complaints and an amendment to Summary Offences Ordinance is now proposed which will prohibit the creation of a nuisance by any person who "by any mechanical means reproduces or amplifies the human voice, any music or any noise whatsoever in a manner which, in the opinion of the magistrate having cognizance of the case, was intended to attract the attention of the passers-by in any public place, and was calculated to cause them to assemble in or to obstruct the same."

MODERN METHOD.

It is explained that the use of modern methods of sound reproduction and amplification has become increasingly common as a means of advertisement among shopkeepers and others who broadcast popular programmes, ensembles of their wares and other matter to the public in the streets from loud-speakers installed in their shops and houses. The result of this indiscriminate broadcasting has been an increase in noise and obstruction in public places, constituting an intolerable nuisance for which this Ordinance provides a simple remedy.

NO SHORTAGE OF TIN

NEW AGREEMENT ON QUOTAS LIKELY

London Oct. 25. The Financial Times reports that well-informed Dutch quarters anticipate that a new international tin agreement will be signed in London on Friday, raising the output under the quotas to forty per cent.

The agreement will run for three years from January 1. Indo-China is reported to be joining the scheme and negotiations have been opened with the Burmese and Chinese Governments. The new quotas will take account of the actual tin content of ore shipped from each country. If outside countries produce during six consecutive months twenty-five per cent. of the estimated world production, each signatory will be entitled to withdraw from the agreement on giving six months' notice. The same quarters informed the Financial Times that there was no fear of a sudden tin shortage. —Reuter.

BIG INCREASE IN REVENUE

TREASURY RETURNS SATISFACTORY

London, Oct. 24. The latest Treasury returns show that the ordinary revenue for the current financial year up to October 21, amounted to £308,910,000. At the corresponding date of last year, the amount stood at £262,500,000. The ordinary expenditure to date for the current year totalled £369,189,906 as compared with £409,646,978 at the corresponding date of 1932. —British Wireless.

NEW GOVERNMENT STOCK

£2,250,000 ISSUE AT 3½ PER CENT.

London, Oct. 24. The Bank of England are authorized to receive applications for the issue of £2,250,000 Government of Southern Rhodesia 3½ per cent. Inhabited Stock 1933/34. The price of the issue is £98 per cent. interest, being payable half yearly on May 1 and November 1. The first interest payment of £1 5s 0d per £100 stock will be made May 1, 1934. Lists of applications will be opened and closed next Thursday. —British Wireless.

ADLY PASHA DEAD

EGYPT'S GREAT STATESMAN

HIS CHEQUERED CAREER

(Our Own Correspondent).

(By Telegraph. Copyright. Telegraphic Message Ordinance, 1931. Received October 25, 1.28 p.m.)

Paris, Oct. 24. The death has occurred of Adly Pasha Yeghen, the famous Egyptian statesman.

Adly Pasha was the leader of the Liberal party, and first came into prominence during the early days of the war when he was appointed Minister of Justice in the Rashdy Cabinet, formed by the Independence party, which lasted for several years.

In connection with the demand for Egypt's independence, a delegation, which included Adly Pasha, was selected to lay the Egyptian case before the Paris Peace Conference, but Gen. Allenby refused the necessary permits—a step which resulted in great unrest and the fall of the Cabinet.

BECOMES PREMIER.

Adly refused to take part in subsequent Ministries until June, 1920. Then after the victory of the Zaghulists at the polls he became Premier of a Government of National Unity. This was not really a coalition, for the followers of Zaghul had an absolute majority and could have governed alone. The object, however, was to enlist the co-operation of the other parties and by giving the Premiership to Adly, the Liberal leader, to emphasise the unity of Egyptians as regards national aspirations.

Adly Pasha was a man of reason and enlightenment with whom it was possible to negotiate. He secured definite assurances that he would not be victimised by the Wafd majority after the opening of the Chamber, but these promises were not kept and consequently the Cabinet did not last long.

IMPOSSIBLE SITUATION.

On April 19, 1927, Adly presented his resignation to King Fuad, explaining the impossible situation created by the Chamber's perpetual interference in administrative matters. The attacks on the Government were carried out chiefly by young Wafd deputies who did not approve of

EVADING DUTY ON WINE

FOUR CHINESE FOUND WITH 13 GALLONS

Li Kit, Ng Nam, Lo Pui and Chan Tim-pu, who claimed to work aboard the Wuchow steamer Wo Ping Yat, were charged before Mr. Laujour in the Central Police Court this morning with possession of 13 gallons of Chinese spirits on which duty had been evaded. Defendants pleaded they bought it for their own consumption.

Revenue Officer Grimmit said that at 9 o'clock this morning, K. O. Ellis and party searched the s.s. Wo Ping Yat and in the forecastle found the four defendants. Underneath the boards on which they were seated was found the jars of wine. The men were taken to the Import and Export Office where they denied possession. Later it was found that the first defendant's name was written on the bottom of one jar and the second defendant's name on another. The boat was searched earlier and quite a lot of wine taken off.

The Revenue officers, he stated, have to wait until the cargo is shifted and in this case they found what they were looking for. A fine of $30 or three weeks' prison each was inflicted and the wine confiscated.

PLANE FACTORY NEAR BERLIN

EXPERT RECALLED TO TAKE CHARGE

Berlin, Oct. 10. Carl Buecher, a German naval airman who, for the last ten years, has been head of an aircraft factory in Sweden, has been recalled to Germany to take charge of a new aircraft factory near Berlin for the construction of commercial planes only.

Buecher is described as one of the greatest experts in steel plane construction. —Reuter.

the cautious policy of their leader Zaghul Pasha. Adly had endeavoured to neutralise their efforts by putting off decisions regarding various measures such as the new bills dealing with the appointment of omdeins and the carrying of arms, but this merely delayed the inevitable crisis. He had either to yield to the policy of the extremists or go.

Adly's Cabinet was succeeded by a Government of which Sarwat Pasha was Premier.

DAY BY DAY NEWS IN BRIEF

"SOME WILL RETAIN THE CONVICTION THAT THE ANCIENT BRIDGE BUILT BETWEEN THE TWO TOWERS OF SEX IS THE WORTHIER OF THE GREAT WORKS OF THE EARTH." —Gilbert K. Chesterton.

Tai Kwong-wo, a coolie, charged with the larceny of a scuffle port nut from the B. & S. s.s. Kwangchow was fined $20 or in default one month's hard labour by Mr. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy this morning.

A revolver was found yesterday by scavenging coolies when removing a rubbish heap in a street at Shamshui, and was handed to the Police at the local Station. It was a .32 calibre weapon, and was in a rusty condition, besides being unserviceable.

The business transacted was purely formal.

BETWEEN TWO TRAMS

AMAZING MOTOR ACCIDENT

SHANGHAI CRASH

Shanghai, Oct. 21. Caught between two trams outside the Palace Hotel in Nanking Road yesterday, a motor car was crumpled up like a concertina and three foreigners had a narrow escape from death, having to crawl out of the car from the smashed top in one of the most unusual accidents ever recorded in Shanghai. The accident was witnessed by a large number of people frequenting the road at the time.

A Ford Fordor Sedan had crossed Szechuen Road at the intersection with Nanking Road at 1.54 p.m. One minute later, in front of the Palace Hotel Bar, it was a complete wreck, the rebounding crash bringing to their windows the tenants in rooms in both the Palace and Cathay Hotels, as well as thousands of office-goers. Half a dozen insurance men were there as well.

Tram Forced from Track

According to the statement of eye-witnesses, the car, driven by Miss A. da Cruz, her brother and sister as passengers and all three sitting in the front seat, attempted to pass on the right hand side, an east-bound tram, in the next few seconds, no one is able to tell a coherent tale other than that the west-bound tram sandwiched the motor car between the two. The impact and position of the car was sufficient to throw the east-bound tram clear of the tracks.

With traction of all three vehicle "off," there was a complete stoppage of traffic on Nanking Road, office-goers being held up as far back as Thibet Road. The situation rivals that of several years ago on the Bund near the N.Y.K. Building, when a small car was completely telescoped between two trams. The hood and radiator of the motor car was crushed and stuck between the stationary trams. After the shock the occupants clambered out of the roof, none the worse for the jar.

Miraculous Escape

The first onlooker to the scene, describes the aftermath in the following terms, "I thought that all must have been killed. The motor car had grazed the east-bound tram for a distance of eighteen feet actual measurement in the driver's desperate attempt to avoid the oncoming tram. Bits of wreckage struck to the tram while the gate was smashed. The other tram suffered less. At least five minutes were required to remove the car after the tram had backed off."

MR. LANSBURY ON WARP

VIGOROUS ATTACK ON JAPAN

London, Oct. 20. A speech was broadcast last night by Mr. George Lansbury, leader of the Labour opposition in the House of Commons, in the course of which he launched an energetic attack against Japan. "Using violence like a real international pirate," Mr. Lansbury said, the Japanese Government has broken all engagements, treating all the pacifist papers by Japan like scraps of paper.

KLONDYKE GOLD RUSH ECHO

DEATH OF SHIPPING AGENT

Seattle, Oct. 19. A picturesque link with the Klondyke has been removed with the death, at the age of 78, of Mr. Robert A. Carroll, who succumbed at his desk in the Seattle Steamship Co., with which he had been connected for the past 25 years.

Carroll, who is survived by his wife, three nephews, and a niece, took part in the Klondyke gold rush and later became well known as the agent of the Alaska Steamship Co.

CORRESPONDENCE

(To the Editor, Hongkong Telegraph.)
Sir,—With reference to the report which appeared in the Telegraph recently concerning Mr. A. J. F. Heard's accident while driving a Ford V-8 De Luxe Tador Sedan, may we state that the car was far from being a complete wreck as it was driven under its own power all the way from the Central Police Station, Hongkong, to our headquarters on Nathan Road, Kowloon, and functioned perfectly.

We understand that Mr. Heard is not very seriously injured and his lucky escape can be attributed to only two things: first, the strength of the welded all-steel Ford body which withstood the severe shock of the impact as no other type of body construction could possibly have done; and second, to the Triplex shatter-proof glass with which all Ford deluxe closed cars are equipped throughout. In this connection we might say that every window in the Heards' car was literally bullet-proof.

It is a fact that not the smallest particle of glass came away. Had the car been equipped with ordinary plate glass, the consequences might have been very serious indeed.

HOME FOOTBALL: TWO FORECASTS AND TABLES

ASTON VILLA ENTERTAIN THEIR OLD FOES THE ARSENAL

(By "The Pilgrim")

Some classic struggles for points which are becoming more and more important, are promised in the on-coming week which will be fought on English and Scottish fields on Saturday.

The clubs are beginning to spread out as the on-coming Saturday and the well-tried veteran teams get into their stride.

Aston Villa will be severely tested at Aston Villa and if they lose it will not be altogether unexpected.

If Gallacher is back in the leadership position I fancy Chelsea will show the Tyneiders a glimpse of their old and I am afraid much tarnished glory.

West Bromwich Albion have fought opponents to extend them in Huddersfield whom I do not anticipate will drop a point on their own ground. After their flashing victory over Wednesday, the United may be de-

The Rangers-Kilmarnock fixture will be a trial of dour strength and if the homesters keep their goal clean I shall be surprised.

Celtic have a chance of adding to their still small total and Queen of the South, a much improved eleven, should relieve St. Johnstone of a brace.

The forlorn Cowdenbeath have strong visitors in Ayr and although their two goals against Dundee last week hinted of a revival, I imagine they will not be given much encouragement on Saturday.

The Preston North End fans will await with anxiety the result of their club's meeting with Port Vale. The latter have disposed Bolton and are in overwhelming mood. On the other hand Preston have declined suddenly from their dashing breakthrough at the beginning of the season.

Bolton should dispose of Fulham

Middlesbro' To See The Sights

gonded upon to lower the City flag whilst Middlesbro' will journey to London more in the hope of seeing the sights than bringing any comfort to their faithful supporters.

The Wolves entertain Wednesday in what will turn out a very even struggle in my opinion.

In Scottish football I have picked Motherwell out as winners of their match with Partick but although their selection is now more a matter of habit than of judgment, I do not feel too easy about them. They have fallen off lately and are not a certainty either at home or away.

WHY SCOTTISH SOCCER IS SUPERIOR.

DISTINCTIONS ANALYSED BY FRANK CARRUTHERS

That oft debated question—are Scots superior in football science to their English colleagues?—has been given a new interest at Home since the Rangers registered their second defeat of Arsenal as recorded a fortnight or so ago.

One of the most competent judges of the game, Mr. Frank M. Carruthers, has discussed the point from all angles and his views are here reproduced in full.

He says: "When I was in Glasgow last month it was insisted that Scottish a great impression on the Rangers' players.

"For 20 minutes," Marshall, the inside right, told me, "I thought they were going to sweep us off our feet. It was the fastest football I had ever experienced. I had never imagined that any team could move the ball about at such a speed."

"During this period the Arsenal were very unlucky. I do not offer that opinion because it is the nice thing to say. If the ball had run at all well for them they must have scored two or three goals."

I asked what was the outstanding difference between English and Scottish football. Marshall offered no

Not Due To Style And Tactics

football was poverty-stricken. Even the Rangers were a poor team, the poorest the club had had for many years."

And the Rangers have twice beaten the Arsenal, the champions of English football.

But if the Scottish champions have created the impression that they are a poor team, I think it is due to the fact that in their own home circle they have so few real contests.

In the Arsenal they had opponents to fight them all the way and pull them out, and under these conditions they revealed themselves as a side worthy to maintain the high traditions of the club.

They were inspired, too, by the crowd, who gave them a magnificent reception. Indeed, in the dressing-room at half-time the talk of the players was mainly of the spectators and of their warm appreciation of good play, no matter who was responsible for it.

These defects of the Arsenal have raised the old question: What is it that gives Scottish football its superiority?

"Intelligent" Footballers

I do not believe it to be due to either style or tactics. The common-held belief is that Scottish teams succeed by means of slow, short passes with the men ambling about the field in a seemingly lackadaisical manner. The idea is entirely mistaken.

At Highbury the Rangers played the Arsenal football of last season, using the long cross pass to get the defenders on the run, with the men anticipating to receive it. At the moment the Arsenal have lost this style. They are not making use of the field to open up the game, and what is worse, they are keeping the ball so close that they cannot get the defence out of position.

But the pace of the Arsenal made have met. They are more staid and they suggest that they are older. Some of them have interests bigger and more vital in their view of life than any that may be found within the game, but in every case I imagine that a close study is made of football.

"There is no need for orders to be given from the manager's office as to the tactics which should be employed to win a match. The players are not drilled and disciplined in the methods to be adopted. All these matters are left to their good sense and instinct, and this probably accounts for the fact that they are never stereotyped."

"From this point of view, the Rangers remind me of the Newcastle United team of twenty-five years ago."

CLUBHOUSE CHATTER BY THE "PILGRIM"

40 Years In Soccer; New Signatures; Dean's Injury

ONE of the pioneers of Soccer in Yorkshire, Mr. John Brunt, has retired after 40 years' association with the game. He was a founder member of Bradford City—in fact, he specialised in laying foundations.

HE was one of the first members of the North-Eastern League, and also of the Northern Counties championship and the Yorkshire Combination.

THE first referees' society in England was inaugurated by him, and he may be said to have laid the foundations of the game well and truly in the West Riding.

JOHN Brunt will be remembered as one of the master builders of Soccer. All who know him will wish him every happiness in his retirement.

WALTER Bussey, the former Stoke inside right, is the fourth player signed within five weeks by the new Blackpool board.

BRISTOL City have signed on J. Kenneth Scattergood, the goalkeeper from Sheffield Wednesday who terminated a month's trial at Bristol recently.

ALDERSHOT, the least-defeated side in the south, are steadily strengthening their team. They have signed W. Bann, a full-back who has had service with Tottenham Hotspur, Brentford, and Bristol Rovers.

A fortnight ago—the Arsenal have lost their swing and ability to make ground quickly. They are playing too much down the middle and in this cramped style they do not draw the defenders out of position.

THE Arsenal are beginning a new phase now I think, judging by their recent performances.

5 MINUTES OF FOOTBALL

(By "Saracen")

The coaching scheme which the Corinthians have inaugurated is one of the most important moves which has taken place in amateur football and I hope it will be extended over a wide field. I wish in fact, that all the leading clubs had a coach of their own. What a difference it would make to their football.

From the point of view of coaching, football on the Continent is far better controlled and encouraged than in England and to this may be traced the remarkable development which has taken place during the past ten years or so. Players are not only taught right kicking, all about the balance of the body which means the balance of the foot in placing the ball accurately but they attend classes in which tactics are closely studied.

In England the player who is not self-taught is the exception and his knowledge of the game is general and to a large extent haphazard. What he knows about team work is mainly elementary and out on the field he does his best according to his own ideas.

METHODICAL AND HAPHAZARD. But there is a great deal more in the game than this, as every youth entering a professional club quickly discovers. Indeed, if he is frank he

THE value of Lucas—for many years the mainstay of Liverpool's defence, and now of the Orient—is as good as over it was. His generalship is superb.

DUFFY of Millwall, the 17-year-old Scot, had a vigorous introduction to Second Division football and was hurt on two occasions. He showed very promising form and his ball control and distribution were good.

J. Cook, the Lutonworth Town amateur full-back, has been signed by Tottenham Hotspur.

DIXIE Dean, Everton's captain and international, was operated on last month for an ankle injury, and has been out of the side for about four weeks.

THE operation was necessitated by an injury received in the game with the Arsenal when he twisted his ankle in turning quickly. He visited a specialist and it was found there were two small pieces of bone in the ankle. Joint Dean was sent to Liverpool Nursing Home to have them removed.

THIS is the second operation of this nature which Dean has undergone, the other being in November 1929, when he sustained a similar injury to his right ankle.

FOUR CHANGES IN LAST CRICKET TRIAL

PLAYER WITHOUT THE BALL MUST NOT BE CHARGED

"A player shall be deemed guilty of ungentlemanly conduct if he charges an opponent who is not in possession of the ball or attempting to play the ball, and if he deliberately obstructs an opponent."

This decision was made by the Shanghai Referees' Society at their October meeting, and will stand until a reply has been received to their query to the Referees' Committee of the English Football Association regarding the right of a player to charge an opponent not in possession of a ball.

Following an address by Mr. Grimshaw, several points were brought up for discussion.

It was pointed out that there was no law which forbade a player to charge an opponent, no matter how far away the ball was. It was decided to ask the Referees' Committee of the English Football Association for a decision on this point and pending a reply to their query the Society of Shanghai adopted the above ruling.

It was also decided that no substitute should be allowed for a player sent off the field for misconduct before the ball has been properly kicked off at the commencement of a game.

For the information of players it was decided to publish explanations of the following points.

The Throw In: The thrower must stand with his feet on or outside the line, i.e., both on the line, both outside it, or one on the line and one outside. He may raise his feet while throwing, provided that this does not bring either foot inside the field, clear of the line, and that neither foot leaves the ground completely. The ball must, of course, be thrown from behind the head, with both hands.

Dangerous Play: The referee can award a free kick in any case where he considers the conduct of a player dangerous or likely to cause injury, but not sufficiently so as to justify him putting into force the greater powers vested in him under Law 9. From such a free kick a goal cannot be scored direct, since it is not awarded under Law 9. Hence a free kick may be awarded inside the penalty area for dangerous play on the part of a defender. This kick is taken in the same way as one awarded for carrying by the goal-keeper. Common examples of dangerous play are kicking at a ball near an opponent's face, and "scissor kicking" close to other players.

Players Returning to the Field: Except in case of injury no player may leave the field without the permission of the referee. Once off the field, for any cause whatever, the player cannot return until the ball is out of play. He must then report to the referee before taking part in the game.

FATHER AND SON TO PLAY

STRONG BATTING SIDE

LIEUT. BUTLER PLAYING

For the final Interport cricket trial on Saturday, four changes have been made in the teams which were on view last week.

T. E. Pearce is to lead an eleven against Hayward's team, and he, together with his son, T. A. Pearce, T. Redmond and Lieut. Butler, take the places of F. A. Munn, who was injured last Saturday, W. C. Hung, E. Zimmern and R. Lee.

Hayward has a very strong side, indicating that he is the probable team which will represent Hongkong in the Triangular Tournament against Malaya and Shanghai next month.

However, there seems to be room for another bowler, so that the final selection, if based on Hayward's present combination, will probably include either Burnett or Perkins.

The teams for Saturday are: A. W. HAYWARD'S XI.
A. C. Finch
E. R. Duckitt
T. A. Pearce
T. E. Pearce
P. V. Williams
A. W. Hayward
E. F. Finch

HOCKEY

CLOSE CALL FOR C.B.A.

CANCELLATIONS

Playing on the home ground at King's Park yesterday afternoon, the Central British Association drew with the Invincibles in a friendly hockey fixture, each side netting two goals. But for the equalizing goal scored by W. Hirst in the last five minutes of the game, the C.B.A. would have suffered their first defeat of the season.

C. G. Francis gave the home team the lead early in the first half with a fine rising shot. R. Keed beating Moss to equalise before the breather. J. Pinto, who led the Invincibles forward line well, gave them the lead in the second half and towards the end, Hirst found the net.

Halford, at centre-half for the C.B.A., played a good spilling game, while Allen and Bickford also did well in the defence. T. Whitley was the pick of the forwards. W. Reed, at centre-half, shone for the visitors, while Pinto was the outstanding forward.

Borderers Beat Y.M.C.A.
On the Marina ground yesterday afternoon, the South Wales Borderers met the Y.M.C.A. first eleven, whom they defeated by three goals to nil, in a friendly game. All the goals were scored in the first half of play, the "Y" defence being better formed in the second half. Duttall, George and L/O (85) Jones.

Matches Cancelled.
Two matches scheduled to be played yesterday were cancelled, these being the Manak Tournament fixture between the R.A.M.C. and the 12th Battery, R.A., and the friendly match arranged between the Radio Sports Club and the Club de Reccolo.

Game Cancelled.
To-day's friendly hockey match between the Radio Sports Club and the Club de Reccolo was cancelled on account of the latter club being unable to field a team.

The following will represent the R.S.C. in a friendly hockey match against the German Club to-morrow at Caroline Hill at 5.10 p.m.: Man Singh, P. Singh, J. S. Grewal, Jagdeep Singh, M. H. Hassan, Mohinder Singh, Prem Singh, G. Singh, Avtar Singh, Kalwant Singh, P. A. Kemp, (Captain), Reserve, Atar Singh.

The following will represent the St. Andrew's Scout Troop in a friendly hockey match against the St. Andrew's Club Ladies on the Marina ground to-morrow (Thursday) at 5.15 p.m. sharp:—H. Millington, V. Bond, E. Winyard, J. Winyard, M. R. Dornier, A. L. Sanhi, G. Arnold, Noel Booker, J. Mackay, L. Gibson, N. Booker.

GOLF CLUB DEBATE

BUILDING PLAN BLOCKED BY BIG MAJORITY OF MEMBERSHIP

FANLING PROJECT DEFEATED

By a large majority the members of the Hongkong Golf Club, at an extraordinary general meeting last evening, defeated a motion to authorise the committee to proceed with the construction of a new Club House and swimming pool at Fanling, at an estimated cost of $350,000. Mr. K. S. Morrison presided.

The resolution before the meeting also asked that the committee be authorised to borrow funds from time to time up to a total of $300,000 at a rate of interest not exceeding 5 per cent per annum to be secured by the issue of debentures charged upon the Club's assets and undertaking; and also for an increase of $3 a month as from December 31 in the subscriptions of playing members and an increase in the subscriptions of ladies of $1 a month.

The discussion which followed the proposal brought out many criticisms, chief among them being that the time was not opportune to embark upon such a project.

The resolution before the meeting was as under:—That the committee be authorised to proceed with the construction of a new Club House and swimming pool at Fanling on the lines of the provisional plan which has been open to inspection since the last meeting of the Club members at the Club's Office during the past three weeks.

That the committee be authorised to expend upon the construction of the Club House and swimming pool, and on the furnishing of the Club House a sum not exceeding $350,000.

That the committee be authorised to borrow funds for the above purpose from time to time up to the total of $300,000 at a rate of interest not exceeding 5 per cent per annum to be secured by the issue of debentures charged upon the Club's assets and undertaking.

That the subscriptions of playing members and subscribers fixed by the Resolution of December 15, 1930, be increased by $3.00 a month as from December 31, 1933, and that the committee be authorised to increase the subscriptions of ladies, other than lady relatives, by $1.00 a month from the same date.

THE CHAIRMAN'S SPEECH.

The chairman said: Gentlemen.—Before proposing the resolution you have just heard, there are one or two points on which misconception exists which would be the better of being clarified now.

I would like to make it perfectly clear that the new Club House scheme is not the committee's baby which they are endeavouring to hand over to the members for adoption. The scheme before you to-night was presented by your committee solely at the instigation of the members.

The question resolves into two issues:—(a) Whether the members desire a new Club House, and (b) Granted they do, whether they are prepared to sanction an increase in subscriptions of members and ladies of $3.00 per month, making $10.00 in all, and of "unattached" ladies $2.00 to $3.00 per month. (Subscriptions for lady relatives and dependents of members will for the present remain at $2.00 per month.) The equity of this suggestion is too obvious to need comment.

A few details as to the scheme itself are now necessary. After many plans had been prepared and rejected, that which has been available for your inspection (concerning 26 and not 32 single rooms as stated in the circular) was in its main features approved by the committee and a rough tender was obtained, which together with cost of site, architect's commission, furniture and fittings, amounted to some three and a half lakhs, included in which was $12,000 for a swimming pool.

COMPARISON OF ACCOMMODATION.

I will now give you a comparison of the accommodation of the present Club House and the proposed new Club House. The present Club House, 1,150 sq. ft. Present Accommodation: new scheme, 2,220 sq. ft. Lounge, 425 sq. ft.; 1,140 sq. ft. Bar, 475 sq. ft.; 450 sq. ft. Men's Dining Room, 1,250 sq. ft.; 1,380 sq. ft. Locker Room, 684 sq. ft.; 1,220 sq. ft. Ladies' Dining Room, 730 sq. ft.; 1,140 sq. ft. Ladies' Lounge, 456 sq. ft.; 1,000 sq. ft. Ladies' Changing Room, 480 sq. ft.; 740 sq. ft.

SWIMMING BATH.

I might be permitted to digress here and explain that the idea of a swimming pool was only tentatively added to most suggestions received, since it was felt that if the new scheme was proceeded with, the bath could be installed at comparatively less cost than would be possible later if a pool was considered necessary by members.

On going further into the matter it has been found that it will very greatly exceed that mentioned, and that a covered bath, with probably a filtration plant, would be necessary.

SPORT ADVTS.

THE HONG KONG JOCKEY CLUB.

Draft Programmes and Entry Forms for the Twelfth Extra Race Meeting, to be held on Saturday, 4th November, 1933 (weather permitting) may be obtained at the Secretary's Office, Gloucester Building, the Club House, Happy Valley, the Hong Kong Club, the Sports Club, and the Stables, Villaggio Road.

Entries close at 12 o'clock NOON on Thursday, 26th October, 1933.

C. B. BROWN,
Secretary.

possible congestion on it during the coming winter. He said that if the Club made an entry into Hotel business on week-end, during only half the year, the probable result was a loss unless very high charges were contemplated. He thought the scheme was one which might be classed with that by which many members were to pay for the benefit of a few. Concluding his remarks, Mr. Jeffries said: "Improvements could probably be made, but we are not justified in embarking upon any scheme involving the residential Club or hotel. The members of this Club require firstly golfing facilities, secondly good meals and refreshment, and thirdly dressing accommodation. They have them and should be satisfied. Most of them are. (Applause)."

MEMBERS SHOULD ROUGH IT.

Mr. G. Middleton Smith made an appeal for the younger members of the Club and he thought subscriptions proposed were a bit too high. He asked for more improvements at Deep Water Bay where he said the dressing accommodation was inadequate. He thought members should be taught to "rough it" a little bit, and there was far too much tendency to "molly-coddle" the younger generation.

Mr. W. P. Simmons pointed out that the magnificent new building which was going to cost three and a half lakhs would only provide 20 single rooms as against 10 at present. It seemed to be a very small addition to the existing accommodation, but it could be made out that line alone. He thought it would have been much better to have evolved a scheme to enlarge the present Ladies' Club House. He was of the opinion that a far less ambitious scheme would have been better than the present one, of course leaving out any question of a swimming pool. He suggested the pulling down of the present building and the rebuilding of a new mixed Club House.

The chairman replied that to get a Club House such as the one suggested by Mr. Simmons would cost something like five lakhs. (Voices: "No, No.")

TRADE DEPRESSION MOAN.

Mr. A. Ritchie said, with regard to the cost of building, there was every possibility of building costs increasing as much as 50 per cent within the next twelve months. With regard to the question of finance, although the committee was seeking authority to spend up to $350,000, it was the general opinion of that body that when detailed estimates were obtained the scheme should cost well under that figure. He also drew attention to the possibility of a depression increasing in the near future. Referring to the cry of trade depression, he said he had heard that moan for the last ten years but he thought most sections of the community were making ends meet fairly successfully. He said the Club was in a healthy financial condition and for the first time in the last ten years they had a waiting list of people anxious to become members. On the face of these facts it was difficult to appreciate the contention that the present was not the time to build a badly needed new Clubhouse at Fanling.

Mr. G. C. M. Wolfe said he would ask members not to be carried away by the somewhat fallacious arguments of cheap money. "Nothing is cheap if you cannot afford it," he said.

BETTER TO WAIT.

Col. E. S. Doughty told the meeting of a Club in Canada which had a membership of 200. They paid $100 each and made the annual subscription $375. They built a new club with a fine course and water supply system and charged new members $500 for admission. That was in 1922 and in 1930 economists told them to sound and spend to help battle unemployment and they paid $500 new Club House at a cost of $100,000. In 1932 fifty per cent of the members had to resign and that Club which was at one time free from debt had gone into the market begging for members at $25 each with no entrance fee.

Col. Doughty said there was a similarity between that Club and the local Club. A depression was just starting here and he thought if the Club had money it would be better to spend twice that sum in more prosperous times.

CONGESTED DRESSING ROOMS.

Mr. J. Fleming said that the present dressing-rooms were admittedly congested between four and five o'clock but the average member did not mind a crowd when he had had

SWEEPSTAKE LUCK

London, Oct. 24.
Among the last names on the list of prize winners in the Irish Hospitals' Sweepstakes appear four ticket-holders in Hongkong.

The lucky numbers represent cash consolation prizes of $1,000 or $500. The following is the list:
L. K. Wong, Modern and Co., Queen's Road, Hongkong; Fan, care of Jenkind, Dodwell Co., Hongkong; Medi Fameri, Luard Road, Hongkong;

Tar, Hongkong Club, Hongkong.
Other prize winners in the sweepstake on the Cambridgehire are:

11. Nieuwenhuis, Metamorph, Amsterdam; a Monsieur Corille, Java; W. V. Voreland, Bloemstnat, Solo; A. P. C. Josie, Shanghai; Ed. Feperovich, Harbin (Trudovaya 14); Atomsan, Minghong Road, Shanghai; Reuter.

A good day in the open. He did not think it advisable to spend all that money on the comfort of members for after all their main object in visiting Fanling was to play golf. The proposed building was to be paid for in fifteen years which he thought decidedly unfair and unreasonable to the present generation of golfers. He suggested instead that temporary extensions be put in hand forthwith. He moved that immediate steps be taken to raise a building fund and that a sum at least equivalent to the depreciation written off on buildings and furniture be invested annually and interest thereon accumulated. If strict economy was practised there was no reason why, say in ten years, the fund would not have grown to such proportion to make the financing of a reasonable project at any time when the cost of the building could be spread over the following thirty years by the gradual repayment of debentures.

Mr. G. M. Tinson asked if there was any reason why the loan should be devoted to fifteen years as that period seemed to be economically unadvised and he suggested spreading it over thirty, forty or even fifty years. The Chairman reminded Mr. Tinson that the bank had stipulated fifteen years.

Mr. Stanley Dodwell, a past president and past captain of the Club, said that nobody present would like more than he did to see the present monotony of a Club House disappear, but as a merchant he could not support the present motion, and added that the present moment was a most inopportune one to start the project.

After a little further discussion the motion was put to the meeting and defeated by a large majority.

THE DAILY DOUBLE

FEATURE PROVES POPULAR

The Stewards of the Hongkong Jockey Club have decided, now that the "Daily Double" has proved to be a popular feature of local racing, to introduce, at the 12th Extra Race Meeting on Saturday, November 4, a few modifications in the system of backing to simplify matters for the backers and to expedite the calculation and payment of dividends.

Tickets will be on sale at the commencement of the Pari-Mutuel Betting on the first of the selected races as before, but when the starters are exhibited on the second of the selected races, instead of the successful backer writing his selection on both halves of the ticket and posting one half in the daily double box, he must exchange the winning ticket for a ticket on the pony he wishes to back in the second of the selected race to complete the Double.

The cumbersome method of writing on tickets and posting in a box will be done away with, and the box will no longer be used.

Shroffs will be available to exchange winning tickets on the first of the selected races for a ticket on any pony in the second of the selected races at the Daily Double Counters.

The betting will close on the ringing of the bell closing the ordinary Pari-Mutuel betting.

An exchanged ticket on any pony in the second of the selected races will be proof that the holder has backed the winning pony on the first of the selected races.

PONIES CLASSIFIED.

Cossack's Beauty Promoted To Be An "A" Candidate.

Following its brilliant run on Saturday, Cossack's Beauty has been promoted by the Stewards of the Hongkong Jockey Club to the "A" Class. The following are the changes in classification:
Golden Dawn to "B" Class, Cossack's Beauty to "A" Class, Gold Key to "C" Class, Orlando to "D" Class.

Cambridgeshire Latest

London, Oct. 24.
Several double alterations were made in to-day's list of probable runners and jockeys for the Cambridgeshire.

Gunn was earlier reported to be riding Inverman, but latest reports are that McGulgan will take the saddle. McGulgan was originally given Town-Crier to ride, but Stephenson will now be the mount, whilst Tartan, which had Walsh up, is now without a jockey.

Allencraig, which had Quick as jockey has now been omitted from the starter's list, together with Obosity, Rathinisle, Chateleine, Bow and Arrow, Galapas and Effacable.

Verselle, which was reported to be a non-starter has now been given Wells as jockey, and D. Smith will ride either The Pont or Ruckell.

Both Bow and Arrow and Galapas were scratched yesterday afternoon.—Reuter.

Athletic directors and trainers everywhere recommend MENTHOLATUM for massage—they know it relieves stiff, sore muscles. After a hard game MENTHOLATUM eases and soothes muscular strain and fatigue. It relieves the pain of bruises, cuts and chafes, and helps to heal them quickly. That is why thousands of sport lovers always have MENTHOLATUM on hand. It comes in jars, tins, and hygienic tubes.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

YESTERDAY'S MARKET STEADY

According to Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz, the New York market was steady yesterday. Business done, 2,110,000 shares. The Wall Street Journal report on yesterday's market: After inexplicable daylong sagging and lethargy an unexpected wave of buying suddenly developed during the last few minutes of the session, advancing prices as much as ten points, creating losses and closing. Some traders thought that weakening dollar was responsible for this sudden change of trend but others would not accept this explanation, saying frankly that they were unable to account for the rally. Our New York Office cable (This morning):

Stocks: The market responded to renewed prospects of inflation. High prices seem likely subject to technical reactions. Wheat: There is evidence of hesitation on reports that the Government's needs have been temporarily satisfied. Outside interest small. Buying side is advised only on good advice. Cotton: With new Commodity and dollar plans reviving the hope of inflationists and the decline of the dollar in exchange again becoming a market factor, renewed interest in apparently on the buying side. Silver: The market is extremely strong on expectation of the establishment of very high gold price to-morrow. Cable received at 11.57 p.m. during our Night Service "Roosevelt" speech being somewhat offset by European conditions.

October of 1914 Rs.2.8 crores of deposits were withdrawn in the Bombay Presidency alone, where I was Accountant-General. When people found that the Post Office paid at once the panics gradually subsided. Before the proposed Constitution comes into force the bulk of the depositors in the Post Office banks and holders of certificates are likely to call in their money and bury it on the principle that it is better to forgo a little interest than run the risk of losing the capital should the new Constitution be unworkable.

Another liability of the Government of India is the amount of the various European Family Pension and Provident Funds. These funds, although the property of the subscribers, exist at present only on paper, and are merged in the Central Government balances. The owners will require this money to be placed in the hands of trustees. This will mean the finding of something like $50,000,000. Indian pensioners have the right to commute half the value of their pension for a single cash payment. If the bulk elect to do so, the Indian Government might have to find a further $25,000,000.

Then there are the Government of India sterling loans. Most of these were raised before there was any talk about transferring control of the administration to Indians. Is the nature of the security of the holders of these loans to be changed without the offer of repayment?

"SHADOWS BY THE SEA"

the person who has taken it from you.

"I'll do it, sir," replied Jim, hoarsely, and departed.

"Miss Fyne, we seem to be getting somewhere," observed Leonard, when they were alone again.

"We're gradually building a pattern, and although I don't know what the final pattern is to be, I'm growing convinced that your new waiter figures pretty prominently in it. And the delicate business is that we mustn't let him know yet of our suspicions."

"But what do you suspect him of, Mr. Sefton?" asked Jessica, anxiously. "You don't mean—you can't mean—?"

"I don't mean anything more than I say. For the moment, I suspect Luigi of nothing definite. But—well, just listen to these points—none of 'em vital by themselves, but are quite interesting when we put them together in a collection. Item, Luigi hears of a most interesting corpse, yet does not say anything about it. Item, not Luigi, had instructions to remain silent. Item, Luigi was the first person Jim saw after making his discovery. Don't think I'm assuming things from that, but it's just another little point worth remembering. Item, when we questioned Luigi about an afternoon visitor, he says he has seen none. But when Luigi is recalled, he goes back on himself, and describes a small shabby man when we expected him to describe a large well-dressed one. I don't believe Luigi's small shabby man exists—because, item, it takes Luigi a long while to tell us where the supposed visitor wanted to be directed to."

"Yes, I remember that," nodded Jessica.

"Item," proceeded Leonard, "Luigi is obviously ill at ease over dinner, bumbles his work, and bumbles worst when mention is made of a broken bicycle. Luigi's predecessor is in hospital owing to a bicycle accident. And, item—Jim's note-book has disappeared. Query, did it contain any reference to a broken bicycle? Yes, I shall have to ask Master Jim that."

"The bicycle on which the last waiter had his accident is in the shed outside," exclaimed Jessica, suddenly. "Would you like to look at it?"

"I would, very much. How did it get into the shed?"

"After the accident, it was brought back here. The waiter—Anderson's name—doesn't live in the neighbourhood, and there was nowhere else to take it. They didn't want it at the hospital, of course."

"Of course not," nodded Leonard, rising. "What I'm wondering is whether that bicycle might interest them at the police station."

"Further item," murmured Leonard.

They left the office and crossed to the front door. As they entered the grounds, laughter came from the tennis lawn, although the light was beginning to fade. Jessica Fyne paused for an instant, and listened.

"That's your doing, Mr. Sefton," she said. "They used to play every evening. I'm grateful to you—you know that. I think. But—let's not do it."

"It's odd, but it's also useful," replied Leonard. "Business has got to remain as usual as long as we can keep it as usual, until—"

"Until when?" she asked, for he had paused.

"Until that mosaic is completed," he answered, "and we can see our way."

"When will that be?"

"A day or two at most, I hope—a few hours, at least."

"And—after that?"

"Peace," he promised her, with a smile. "And sunshine again."

They crossed to the shed, and Jessica threw the door open. There was no bicycle in it.

"How often do you ring your bell for Luigi?" asked Leonard suddenly, while Jessica stood staring.

"Twice," she answered. "But—Mr. Sefton—that bicycle was here just before dinner—I know it was."

"And, after dinner," added Leonard, "the bicycle isn't here. Will you go back to your office, please, and ring twice?"

"You want to speak to Luigi?"

"I think it most important to speak to Luigi."

She closed the shed door, and they returned to the little office. Jessica pressed the bell-push twice. A minute went by. She rang again.

AFTER TWENTY YEARS

MIXED CHINESE ACTORS TO PLAY HERE

For the first time for over 20 years, permission has been granted to a mixed company of Chinese actors and actresses to perform together in Hongkong, and tomorrow night and again on Friday, the famous players, Miss Tong Suet-ling and the well known Sit Kok-Sin Company will appear together at the Ho Shing Theatre.

Their performances will be given in aid of the new Hostel Fund of St. Stephen's College, Stanley, and for this purpose the Ho Shing Theatre management are allowing the use of the theatre free.

TALKING PICTURES.

To-morrow night Mr. Sit Kok-sin is donating part of the proceeds and on Friday, the whole of the receipts will be devoted to the Hostel funds.

When Miss Tong performed with Mr. Sit in Canton recently, many Hongkong theatre-goers took the opportunity of seeing them together, whilst several of their pictures have been shown at the Central Theatre.

Next week Mr. Sit and his Company proceed to Shanghai, where, with Miss Tong Suet-ling, they will make sound pictures of the stage performances.

JOY RIDE WHICH COST $40

INEXPERIENCED DRIVER HITS RICKSHA

A "joy" ride which ended in a collision with a ricksha, had a sequel before Mr. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy this morning, when Yim Yau, a garage coolie at the Peak Garage, was charged with having driven a private car without a licence at 10.45 p.m. yesterday near Jardines Bridge, and with having driven in a dangerous manner.

Sub-Inspector Shepherd said that yesterday morning, Mrs. Lock, of 184, the Peak, rang up Lane Crawford's and asked for a fink to be sent round to repair a punctured wheel in her car and to change the oil. Defendant answered the phone and went over himself.

He changed the oil, but instead of going through the usual procedure of getting a driver from the garage, tried to drive the car himself. Going down the slope from Mt. Kellist to Stubbs Road he met two rickshas. He missed the first but crashed into the second. A German missionary, who was in this ricksha, jumped clear, but the coolie was slightly injured in the legs.

Mr. Schofield imposed a fine of $10 on each charge, and also ordered the defendant to pay the coolie $20 compensation.

PEKING PARLEYS

MR. ARIYOSHI AND MR. HUANG FU

Peking, Oct. 24. Mr. Adra Ariyoshi, Japanese Minister to China, to-day visited General Huang Fu again and conferred with the Chairman of the Peking Political Council for a considerable time. Chinese and Japanese officials are maintaining the strictest secrecy with regard to the nature of the interview, insisting that it was merely a courtesy call and nothing relating to the Sino-Japanese situation was discussed. However, the fact that the Chinese newspapers here are forbidden to report the Japanese Minister's visit to Gen. Huang has given rise to suspicion in Chinese circles. It is believed that the two leaders are exchanging views regarding important Sino-Japanese problems.—Reuter.

STOCK MARKETS UNDERTONE

FINISHES GOOD AFTER GENERAL FIRMNESS

London, Oct. 24. After showing a general firmness throughout the day, the stock markets closed with a good undertone, although values in some cases dropped below the last.

British Government stocks finished firm with War Loan 8½ per cent. at 101.13/16, while the new South Africa 3½ per cent. after active business, was finally quoted at half premium.

Kaffirs and Internationals were not so good at the finish. French 4 per cent. bonds closed at 23½, and the 4½ per cent. at 25½.—British Wireless.

AN ASTONISHING DEMAND

RETIREMENT OF SOVIET TO THE URALS

QUIT THE FAR EAST

HARBIN, OCT. 25.

THE JINGOISTIC JAPANESE-OWNED "HARBIN TIMES" HAS EXCELLED ALL PREVIOUS EFFORTS IN A REMARKABLE LEADING ARTICLE PUBLISHED THIS MORNING.

The complete abandonment of the whole of Siberia to Japanese domination;

Retirement of the Soviet to the Ural Mountains, to Russia in Europe in fact;

Discontinuance by Moscow of any policy for the Far East, are among the astonishing demands made by the journal, which adds that unless such self-abnegation is undertaken voluntarily, Japan will be compelled to impose the conditions upon Russia.

HARBIN JOURNAL'S OUTBURST

The Harbin Times puts the "issue" very simply, declaring that unless the Soviet discontinues her present Far Eastern policy, quits Siberia and withdraws to the Ural Mountains, the Japanese must safeguard her own security and at the same time release the inhabitants of the Far East from their "hellish sufferings."

If the Soviet Government increases her Far Eastern activities, the journal adds, Japan must take decisive measures and, sword in hand, strike a decisive blow against Soviet aggression.—Reuter.

RUSSIAN CHARGES.

Meanwhile, the Tass Agency continues to level accusations against Japan concerning her intentions with regard to the Chinese Eastern Railway and its circulating foreign press comment on the Hishikari documents.

The Manchester Guardian is quoted as saying that Japan cannot deny the authenticity of these documents. "They are too much in keeping with what actually took place in the Far East, to be rid off with simple denial."

PROVOCATION.

The newspaper remarks that the Japanese plan was calculated to provoke the Soviet Government, and represented a classic sample of its kind. "However, if the Japanese Government thinks that this plan could force the Soviet Government to retreat, the publication of documents proved the opposite. If Moscow intended to stand the Japanese game, she would not make such efforts to expose the nature of that game," says the Guardian.

FRENCH ANXIETY.

The French newspaper Notre Temps is quoted as follows: "The Soviet Union has recently occupied such a great place in our political considerations, that we cannot but treat with great seriousness the conflict threatening to arise between the Soviet Union and Japan, in connection with the Chinese Eastern railway problem."

PARTNER MAKES GOOD

EMBEZZLED MONIES RETURNED

Chan Sik-yin, a partner in the Hon Sang Loong firm of No. 134, Gloucester Road, made a second appearance before Mr. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy this morning, charged with embezzling $571.54 on various dates, and was bound over in $100 to be of good behaviour for one year.

Mr. H. L. Denny, appearing for the prosecution, said that they wished to withdraw the charge as the accused had made ample restitution. He was still a partner in the firm, and they were willing to have him back. As he had already been in prison for one week, it was considered ample punishment.

Sub-Inspector Nolloth said that the defendant had paid back over $900 and the remainder was owing to him in wages.

"When the present political conditions in Europe are taken into account, this conflict is fraught with most serious consequences."

A BRIGHT LIGHT.

Reviewing the chain of provocations perpetrated by Japan since the beginning of the negotiations for sale of the C.E.R., the newspaper continues: "The U.S.S.R. replied to that with sufficient firmness by publishing four documents proving most undoubtedly that Japan has decided to use underhand methods and to ruin the C.E.R. by all means, in order to depreciate it and eventually to snatch it from the hands of the U.S.S.R., when the latter becomes tired of this insidious fight."

"Japan strives to refute the authenticity of the published documents, blaming the 'unwholesome' methods of the Soviet diplomacy. However, this does not mitigate the blow. Quite to the contrary, a 'bright light' has been thrown on the methods applied by Japan" concludes the journal.

SNATCHED $5 FROM COUNTER

Man's Attempted Theft Frustrated

Sentence of three months' hard labour was passed on a youth So Luk by Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning when he was convicted of stealing $5.

It was stated that at about noon yesterday, a woman named Lam Yau went to a restaurant in Tam Kung Street, Kowloon City, to make some purchases. She tendered a $5 note and while it was lying on the counter, accused came up and snatched it away.

The woman raised the alarm and followed accused who ran towards Prince Edward Road. A Chinese detective took up the chase and later caught accused.

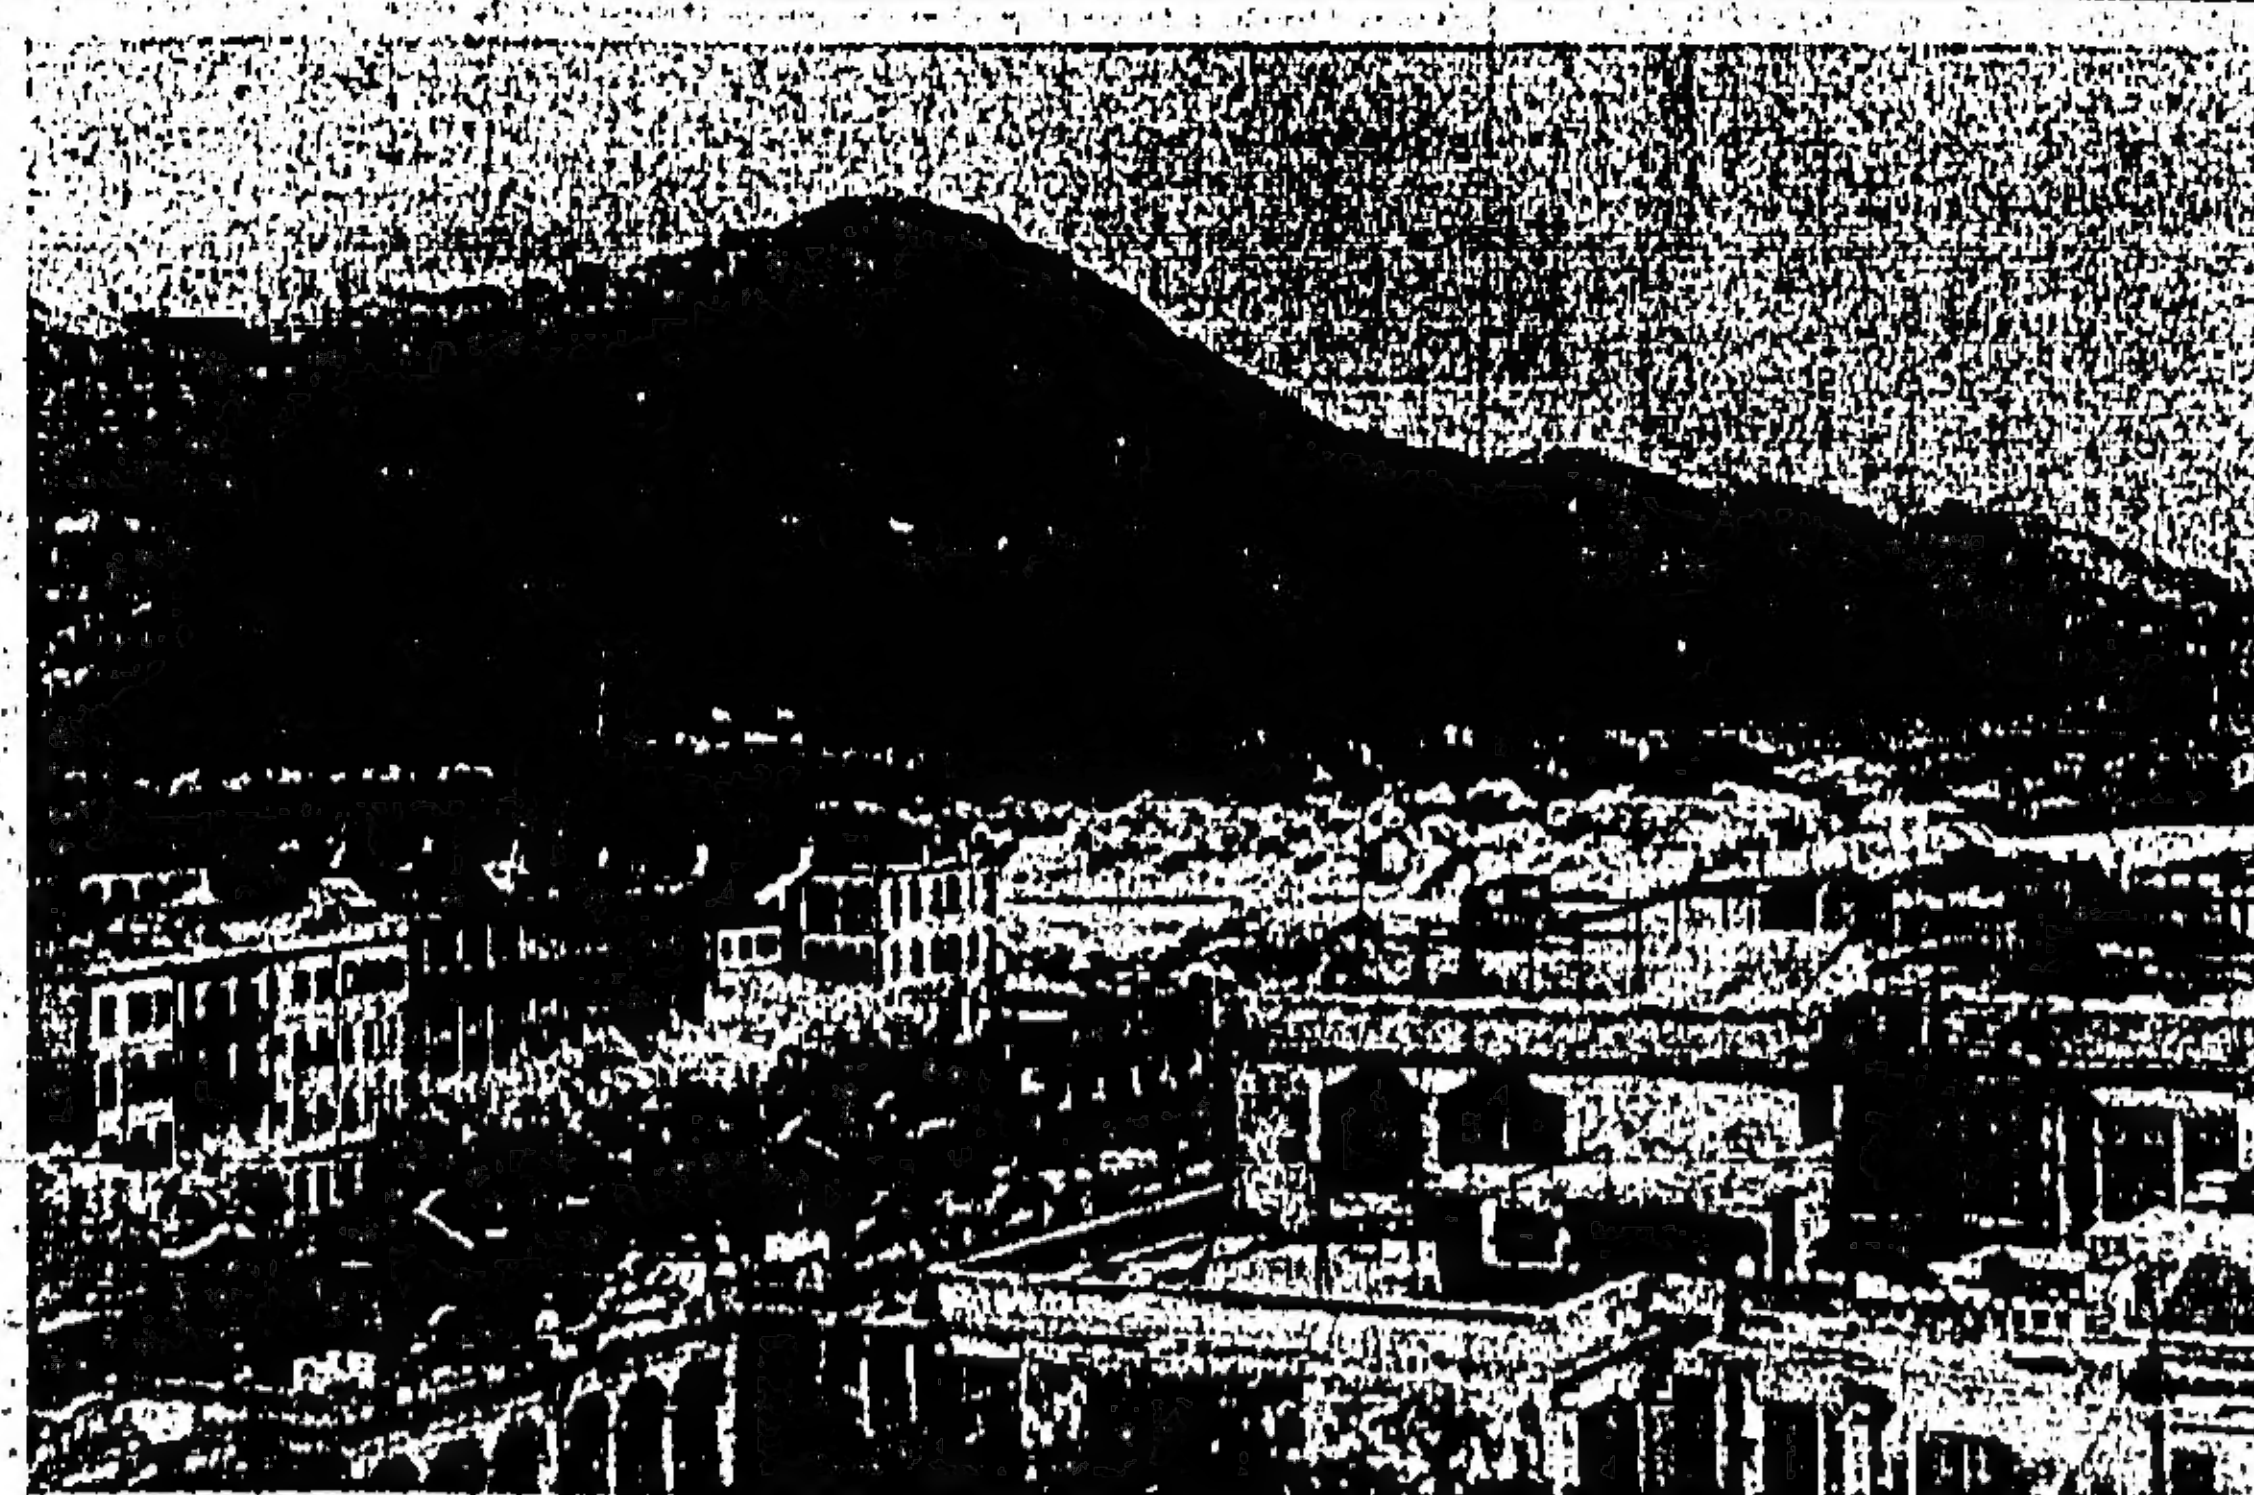

THIEF ASSISTS POLICE

OWNER OF STOLEN CAR-PART TRACED

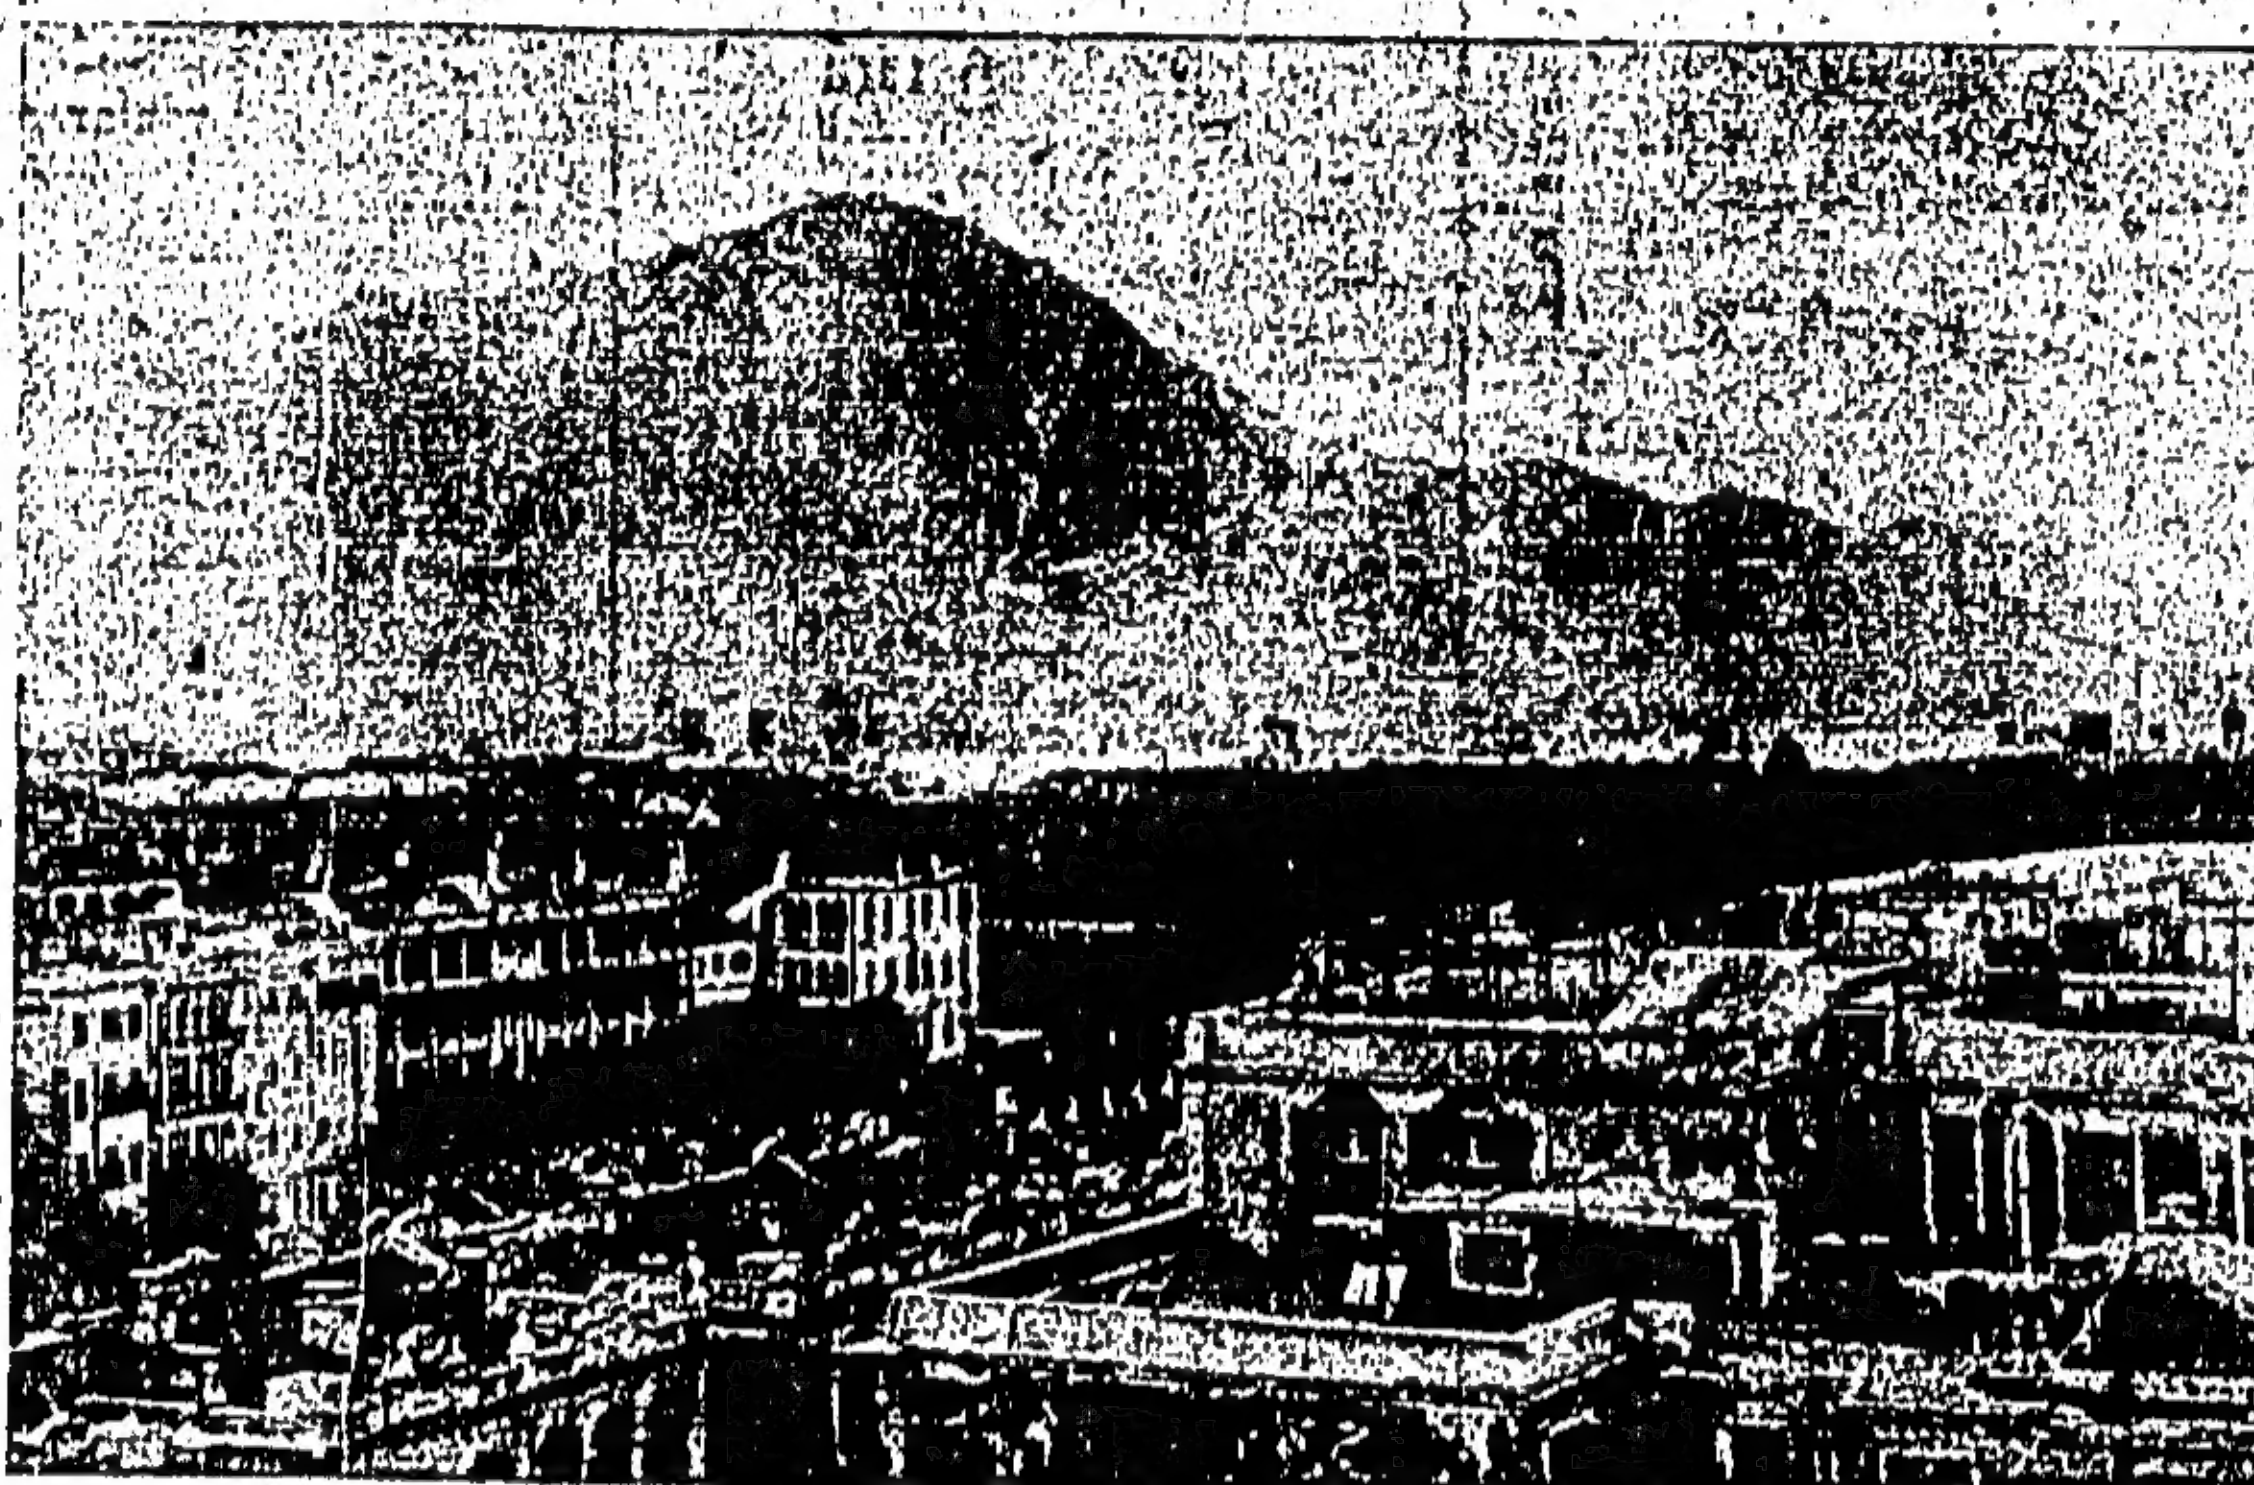

A radiator cap belonging to a car owned by Dr. J. Durran, Alexandra Buildings, formed the subject of a theft charge to which Kwong Yin, unemployed, pleaded guilty before Mr. Balfour in the Central Police Court this morning.

It was stated by Detective Sergeant Fowle that defendant was arrested in Queen's Road Central near Pottinger Street with the radiator cap in his possession. The magistrate: Has he been arrested before?

Sergeant Fowle: I don't think so. He gave the Police every assistance in tracing the owner of the radiator cap. Being the defendant's first offence, Mr. Balfour bound him over.

A remarkable example of the new infra-red process in photography is provided by the accompanying pictures taken by Mr. J. C. M. Graham. Top picture shows the Peak, with part of Kowloon in the foreground. Detail on the Peak is quite clear. This picture was taken on an infra-red plate, which it will be observed turns the green of trees white. Below is a picture taken at the same time and place on an ordinary plate, for purposes of comparison, revealing the mist through which the infra-red process had to penetrate.

BRITON'S WIFE KIDNAPPED?

PROF. O'CONROY ATTACKS JAPAN

London, Oct. 20. Professor O'Conroy, formerly instructor of English at the Kelo University, Tokyo, who last week published an article violently attacking Japanese imperialism, last night intimated to press representatives his fears that his wife may have been kidnapped in Japan.

Professor O'Conroy said he has not heard for a long time from Mrs. O'Conroy, who is of Japanese origin and who returned to Tokyo several months ago to keep her husband posted on developments of the situation in the Far East. He added that this long silence made him fear that she had been kidnapped by the patriotic association called the "Shinpetai," from whom she had already received several threatening letters in connexion with Professor O'Conroy's anti-Japanese activities.—Havas.

KOWLOON WEDDING.

MCALULAY-FLEMING

At the Kowloon Union Church yesterday afternoon, the Rev. Frank Short solemnised the marriage between Miss Molly H. Fleming, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Fleming of Greenock, and Mr. James McAulay, the eldest son of Mrs. and the late Mr. Samuel McAulay, also of Greenock. The bridegroom, who is a marine engineer, is employed on the s.s. Kiangsu.

The bride was given away by Mr. John E. Anderson, and looked charming in a dress of white satin charmeuse with a veil of fine tulle edged with silver. She carried a bouquet of pale pink gladioli. In attendance, were Miss Belle Park, as bridesmaid, and Miss Cathrin Robertson as flower girl. Miss Park wore a dress of peach georgette and a brown chiffon velvet toque. Her bouquet was of African daisies. The flower girl's dress was of frilled net over pink silk.

The matron of honour, Mrs. A. Black, wore a dress of navy blue crepe anarocain.

The duties of best man were performed by Mr. J. J. Forster.

The service was choral. Mrs. Frank Short playing selections at the organ, and at its conclusion a reception was held at the Peninsula Hotel.

Later the couple left for Repulse Bay on their honeymoon, the bride's going away dress being a powder blue ensemble.

SAVED LONDON IN 1919

DEATH OF SIR W. GIBBONS

(Our Own Correspondent).

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages, Ordinance, 1929. Received October 25, 1.35 p.m.)

London, Oct. 24. The death is announced of Lieut. Colonel Sir Walter Gibbons, K.B.E., a founder of the Automobile Association and Chairman of the Royal Botanic Society.

Sir Walter became a national figure during the famous Railway Strike of 1919, when he was instrumental in supplying food for London. Again in 1921 he organised the whole of the transport for London and Home Counties to meet the emergency likely to arise.

CITY FREEDOM.

He was admitted to the Freedom of the City of London, and was one of H. M. Deputy Lieutenants for the County of London.

Born in 1871, Sir Walter was in his early life attached to the 3rd Batt. Scots Guards, but was afterwards gazetted to command the R.A.S.C. (Middlesex). He was a Knight of Grace of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem, and for services rendered during the War received several decorations.

In 1902 he married Nellie Isabella, daughter of the late George Adney Payne, but she died nine years later. Sir Walter married Doris Blanche, daughter of Charles Lee, J.P., Sir Walter divorced her in 1929.

ENGINE TROUBLE ON SUI AN

ON SUI AN

Soon after leaving Macao, this morning the s.s. Sui An developed engine trouble and as a result did not make her scheduled return run at 2 p.m. this afternoon. The trouble is stated to be only slight. The engines are being overhauled this afternoon and it is probable that the Sui An will make the 5 p.m. trip.

UNIVERSITY DEBATE.

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT AND MODERN SOCIETY

By a majority of 50 to 22, undergraduates of the Hongkong University rejected the motion "That capital punishment should be abolished," at a debate held last night.

Mr. R. Woolley, who proposed the motion, and Mr. Y. S. Chan, who supported him, represented the Arts Association, while Mr. S. V. Gittins and Dr. N. P. Karanjia, representing the Graduates Association, opposed the motion.

In an eloquent speech, Mr. Woolley appealed to the sentiments of his audience, saying that in this civilised world such a step should be abolished. He also dealt with the humanitarian side of the question and the chances of reformation of hardened criminals.

Mr. Gittins exhorted the audience to look upon the question from the viewpoint of justice. He submitted that society had not reached such a stage where it could allow a man who has committed murder to go free; it would not be safe to do so.

Both speakers received able support from their seconders, Mr. Chan finding a touch of humour to the debate with his contentions.

At the conclusion of the debate, Sir William Hornell thanked the Graduates Association for having come forward to take part in the meeting. He said he had always maintained that the graduates were not keeping as much in touch with the University as he might wish, but he hoped that this co-operation between the Arts Association and the Graduates Association would be a happy augury of many future meetings of the same nature.

GERMANY'S MARKET.

NEGOTIATIONS PLANNED WITH MANCHUKUO

Tokyo, Oct. 24. It is reported from Harbin that the German Consul there has received instructions from Berlin to negotiate with Manchukuo with a view to bartering German-made machinery for Manchurian soy beans.

According to authoritative sources, it is expected that a satisfactory agreement will be reached.—Reuter.

To avoid a water buffalo on the Un Long Road, a lorry on Monday swerved, and dropped into a puddle, it overturned, but the driver was thrown clear, and escaped with only slight facial injuries.

MURDER TRIAL AT SESSION

ACCUSED FOKI PLEADS NOT GUILTY

The discovery of a Chinese woman dying by the Bund at Sha Po in August last resulted in the appearance before the Chief Justice at the Criminal Sessions to-day, of Fok Kan, alias Tau Pei-to charged with murder.

Prisoner who is described as an earth coolie, aged 38, was represented by Mr. Leo D'Almada, Jr., who entered a plea of not guilty.

He was committed from Tai Po on October 3 by Mr. E. H. Williams on the following two charges:—that he on August 6, at Sha Po, with others not in custody, did murder Lau Fui, and that he, with Pang Ngau-shing, on the same day wounded Chan Shing with intent to murder him.

Sha Po is in Au Tau district in the New Territories but prisoner hails from Ha Pak Kok village, Pun U, which is under Chinese jurisdiction.

The murdered woman was stated to be living with Chan Shing, who was Fok's employer.

The jury empanelled comprised Messrs. D. Marshall (foreman), W. J. Woolley, J. L. Robinson, J. D. Provan, S. A. Sweet, L. G. Rosario, and I. N. Murray.

CROWN CASE.

Mr. Fraser put forward the Crown case, demonstrating with a model sampan and matched the alleged action of the crime. He stated that Chan Sing and Lau Fa were engaged in planting rice in that district and were assisted by prisoner who was paid from money taken by Lau Fa from her girdle. Chan and the woman slept together in a sampan. At 8 o'clock in the morning Chan found himself being attacked by a man with a chopper whilst prisoner stood at the other side of the sampan. Chan scrambled out of the boat and ran for his life along the mud. He had been so severely injured that he fell down a short distance away whilst his assailant continued to strike him. Meanwhile, Chan's daughter, who had been sleeping in a nearby thatched hut, on hearing her mother's cries and saw her father being attacked whilst accused conducted a search of the sampan. Au So, another inhabitant of the thatched hut, which brought two Indian constables to the scene.

The men ran off and Lau Fa was found to be dying of her injuries and Chan was so badly wounded that he had to be taken immediately to the Kowloon Hospital where he remained for six weeks. The woman's girdle was missing from her body.

Prisoner was captured a few weeks later and gave evidence at the Tai Po Magistracy denying the murder and attributing it to a companion named Pang Nga-shing. He admitted being with Pang for five hours before the assault but said he did not know what Pang's intentions were when he accompanied him to the sampan. Pang dealt the blows with some instrument he held in his hand and said while striking the woman "She is the wife of a friend of mine. I will kill her."

HOSPITAL EVIDENCE.

Dr. J. B. Mackie, attached to the Kowloon Hospital, said the woman had 11 wounds on the head which was fractured in numerous places. The brain was also lacerated and death must have ensued within a short time of the assault from the head injuries and fractures. Chan (who came into court with a huge scar across the left side of his face) was in a dangerous condition for several days after admission to the Hospital, and was suffering from multiple injuries, apparently caused by the same weapon used against Lau Fa.

Former evidence of plans and photographs was given after which Sergeant O'Connor went into the witness box and stated that he was first informed of the incidents of the night and took charge of the man and woman.

Chan Sing testified that Lau Fa was his wife and that he employed prisoner in a contract he had obtained. Fok knew that his wife had a quantity of banknotes because he had seen her take them from her girdle on one occasion in July. On the night in question he was "awakened by a noise and all of a sudden felt a chopper on my head. The man who cut me was Pang and he kept cutting me and then threw me into the sea. My wife crawled under the hood and prisoner pulled her out by her hair and pulled her about."

When pressed by Mr. Fraser to say whether he definitely saw Fok, witness said it could not have been anyone else.

The case is proceeding.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

Today's Contract Problem

North and South are vulnerable. East and West are not vulnerable, holding the following hand. South opens the contracting with one spade and West makes a Sims negative double. How would you proceed with the bidding?

North: ♠ Q 9 6 4 ♣ Q 5
♥ A Q 5 ♠ K 6 3 2
East: ♠ 8 3 2 ♥ A 7 3
♦ 9 6 4 3 ♣ A Q 8
South: ♠ A K J 10 7 5 ♥ None
♦ K J 10 8 7 2 ♣ 6 5
West: ♠ None ♥ K J 10 9 8
♦ 6 4 3 ♣ J 10 7 4
Solution in next issue. 30

Solution to Previous Contract Problem

West's double of four hearts by South, in the preceding problem, is what helped the declarer to make his contract, because it gave him an idea of the distribution in trump.

The hand was played by William F. Hopkins of Cincinnati. Mr. Hopkins is one of the many experts of Cincinnati who will welcome other bridge players of the country to the National Championship Tournament of the American Bridge League in that city the week of December 4.

The Bidding

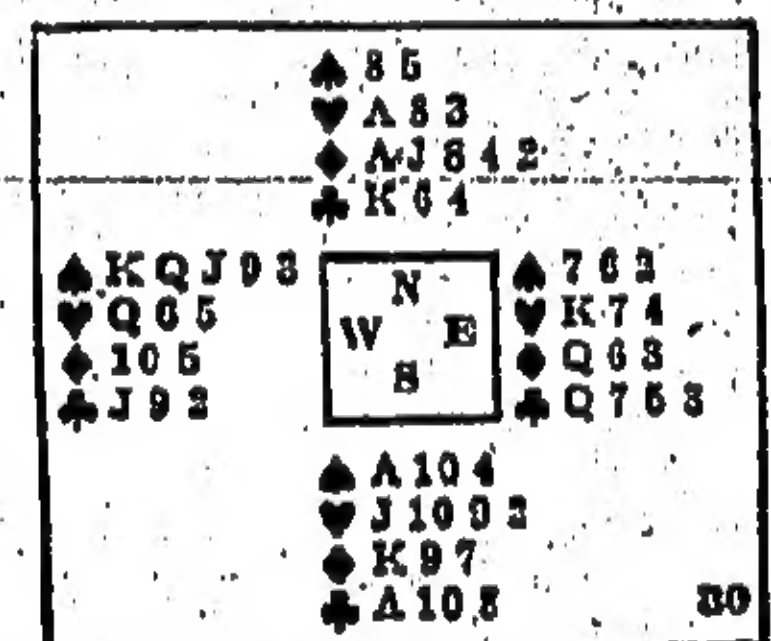

Mr. Hopkins was sitting in the North. His partner in the South opened the contracting with one club. West, who was vulnerable, did not feel safe in overcalling with one heart and passed. Mr. Hopkins in the North, however, made a one over one forcing overcall of one heart.

East bid one spade and South jumped to four hearts which West promptly doubled.

The Play

The six of spades was opened by East and won in dummy with the ace. A small club was returned and Mr. Hopkins in the North played the jack. East won the trick with the ace and returned a small club hoping that his partner could trump, but West followed. Mr. Hopkins returned the queen of clubs and when West trumped with the three of hearts he discarded his losing ten of spades.

West returned the king of spades which Mr. Hopkins in the North trumped with the deuce of hearts. He next led a low heart to the ace and East showed out. A small diamond was returned and won by North with the queen. The ace of diamonds was cashed.

then the six of diamonds played and won in dummy with the king. Mr. Hopkins then returned a small heart. West jumped in with the queen and returned the eight of spades which Mr. Hopkins trumped with the six of hearts, discarding a club from dummy. The deuce of diamonds was then trumped in dummy with the king of hearts, West being forced to under-trump with the nine. The nine of clubs was returned and when West trumped with the ten, North overtrumped with the jack.

BANK FRONT COLLAPSE

EXCITEMENT IN CITY
LAST NIGHT

TRAM SERVICE HALTED

With a resounding crash that could be heard for nearly half a mile around, a large portion of the Des Voeux Road front of the old Hongkong and Shanghai Bank Building collapsed last night.

The incident occurred at about 9.40 p.m. and caused considerable excitement in the neighbourhood, a large crowd collecting in a few moments.

Clouds of dust rose two hundred feet into the air as the result of the crash and settled over a wide area.

A huge quantity of masonry on the Des Voeux Road front was involved, but fortunately, the greater part fell inwards.

Sufficient fell across the roadway, however, to bring the tram service to a halt for ten minutes.

No-one was injured. The work of demolition had ceased for the night, although coolies were still engaged on the foundations for the new building, next door, so to speak.

GUN-TEAM TRAGEDY IN JAPAN

Tokyo, Oct. 20.
Tragedy befell a gun-team during battery training near Nagoya this morning, when the wheels of a field-gun skidded and plunged over a bridge. An artilleryman was killed and three companions very critically injured.
Two horses were also killed.

DENTIST STEALS FROM CHILD

DAYLIGHT ROBBERY IN CENTRE ST.

Six months hard labour and 20 strokes of the birch, or if certified unfit to receive them two months hard labour in addition, was imposed by Mr. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy this morning, on Pang Kau, a street dentist, charged with having snatched a jade bangle and a rattan gold mounted bangle from a child's hands, in Centre Street yesterday.

Inspector Houshian said that the complainant Chan Yuet-hing was walking in Centre Street with the child strapped on to her back. She suddenly heard the child cry out, and on turning round saw the defendant running away.
She raised the alarm and he was arrested, the two bangles being found in his possession.

Defendant admitted a previous conviction for larceny, for which he received six weeks hard labour.

THE TYPHOON

POSITION REPORTED UNCERTAIN.

The Royal Observatory reports that the anticyclone over China has weakened slightly, and the northern depression remains to the north of Hokkaido.

The position of the depression or typhoon in the China Sea is very uncertain; it is probably situated about 200 miles south of Pratas Island, moving slowly westward.

Local forecast: — North-east winds, fresh; fair.

The R.M.S. "Empress of Russia" left Vancouver for Hongkong, via Honolulu, Japan ports and Shanghai, on the 21st October and is due at Hongkong on the 9th November.

AIR MAIL TO CANTON

TWICE WEEKLY SERVICE

PLANE RETURNING TO-DAY

Canton, Oct. 25.

Canton inhabitants were able to read Shanghai newspapers about ten hours after their publication when they received them through the China Aviation Company plane which yesterday inaugurated the Shanghai-Canton air service.

The big Sikorsky plane started her flight from Shanghai at 6.05 yesterday morning and touched at Wenohow, Foochow, Amoy, and Swatow, finally reaching Canton at 4.50 yesterday afternoon.

The whole flight together with her mail-carrying service, were executed with a high degree of regularity, and prospective recipients of the air mail at the cities of call received their respective quotas at the expected hours.

The plane will make her return flight to the North this afternoon, carrying a quantity of mails with her.

A christening and inauguration ceremony will be performed by Mayor Liu Chi-wen to-day at 2 p.m. at Nan Shih Tao. Following the ceremony, the plane "Canton" will leave, for Swatow at 2.30 p.m. and will arrive at 5 p.m.

It will leave Swatow to-morrow for Shanghai by way of Amoy, Foochow and Wanchow, and is scheduled to arrive Shanghai at 3 p.m.

Hereafter, southbound planes will leave Shanghai every Tuesday and Friday, and northbound machines will leave Canton every Wednesday and Saturday. The time of departure from Shanghai will be 6 a.m. and from Canton will be 2.30 p.m.—Central News.
